Less than 24 hours after she had arrived in Atlanta to spend the winter as guest-boarder in the home of an old acquaintance, Mrs. Etta J. McAfee, 65, of Atlanta and Birmingham, was beaten to death Wednesday afternoon by William H. Joyner, 56-year-old unemployed butcher who, police assert, suddenly went insane. Mrs. McAfee was the sister of a prominent banker of Gadsden, Ala. The killing occurred in the bedroom assigned to Mrs. McAfee in the Joyner home, 277 Glenwood avenue, S. E. The elderly visitor was seated in a rocking chair before an open-hearth fire when the demented man crushed her skull with a crowbar. Neighbors, summoned by Louise Joyner, 15-year-old daughter of the crazed butcher and the only other person in the Joyner home at the time of the tragedy, at first were menaced by the slayer. Later, however, he was taken into custody without resistance. At police station he was in a state of physical collapse and could not even speak intelligently. Following his arrest he was docketed on "suspicion of murder." Police recalled that little more than a week ago Joyner attempted suicide by slashing his throat in his home. He was taken to Grady hospital then and found to be seriously wounded. Slayer's Wife Frostrated. Mrs. Joyner, who was at work away from home when the tragedy occurred, was prostrated when informed of the slaying. She and Mrs. McAfee were old friends, and Mrs. McAfee had only arrived from Birmingham. Continued in Page 10, Column 7.

Two Georgians Die In Highway Crash

SANDERSVILLE, Ga., Oct. 5.—(AP)—Two men were burned to death near here last night when their truck crashed into the approach to the Buffalo creek bridge, overturned and caught fire. The bodies of the men were discovered in the creek beneath the bridge. They were so badly burned no marks of identification could be found. The truck, loaded with canned pineapple, apparently, was traveling from Savannah to Atlanta. Motorists reported the highway strewn with packing cases. The truck was an open body, two-ton job. It was demolished. Bodies of the victims were taken to an undertaking establishment here pending identification.

Florida County To Pay Bounty on Rattlesnakes

ARCADIA, Fla., Oct. 5.—(AP)—A bounty of 25 cents each on slain rattlesnakes has been offered by the county commissioners to aid the unemployed and to try to rid the county of the reptiles. A piece of the tail meat, together with the rattles and button must be presented and the killer must make an affidavit that the snake was slain in this county. "It is not that we have more rattlers than other counties," said County Clerk Bennett, "but that we are determined to exterminate those we have and at a time when people are anxious for needed money."

SMITH EXPECTED TO MOUNT STUMP TO AID ROOSEVELT

Threat To Unseat Tammany Chief Aftermath of Roosevelt-Garner Victory at Albany.

BY ROBERT ST. JOHN.
NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—(AP)—A threat to unseat the Tammany Hall chief and a belief in democratic quarters that the way has been paved for Al Smith to take up the cudgels in Governor Roosevelt's presidential drive stood out tonight as results of New York democracy's dramatic convention. High spirits reigned in the Roosevelt-Garner camp as campaign leaders returned from Albany with memories of the hand-clapping scene which marked the first meeting of Smith and Roosevelt since their Chicago fight. On the heels of their joint victory in winning the gubernatorial nomination for Herbert H. Lehman came reports the two leaders are also of like mind in their opposition to the possible nomination of James J. Walker for the mayoralty post he relinquished at the height of ouster proceedings. While hope grew in the states known as Smith strongholds that the 1928 standard-bearer would now agree to make some campaign speeches, Smith himself smiled and said nothing. His associates indicated he would wait for Roosevelt himself to invite him to become an active campaigner. At Albany the governor said he Continued in Page 10, Column 6.

Garner's Answer to Hoover Cites Broken Promises of '28

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—(AP)—The measure that would have assured farmers the credit necessary to prevent foreclosure. He asserted at that time that it would make the government a pawnbroker, and insisted that loans be extended only to a select clientele. After extending the loans he states that he is now endeavoring to induce those who have secured the millions of government credit to be lenient with the farmers and homeowners whose mortgages they hold. Garner said he was not criticizing the loans to the financial organizations "but it must be obvious that extension of credit to a select few only cannot bring to this country the maximum benefits that should accrue from the release of this great volume of credit." Farmers and home owners, he asserted, are as much entitled to that credit as any corporation with equally acceptable collateral. Senator Harrison said: "The farmers of the west know that President Hoover's administration has not been fair to them. It is not higher tariff which the farmers desire, but a tariff readjustment that will place agriculture upon an equality with other industries. . . . They know that the tariff rates on numerous Continued in Page 10, Column 8.

ON BOARD PRESIDENTIAL SPECIAL EN ROUTE TO WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—(AP)—In self-termed hard words, President Hoover today denounced as "deliberate, intolerable falsehoods" what he said were widespread personal misrepresentations promulgated in the mid-west in the past few weeks. Surrounded by a crowd that pushed and shoved toward him as he spoke over the radio from the rear platform of his special train at Fort Wayne, Ind., the president said he believed sportsmanship and statesmanship called for the elimination of harsh personalities between opponents. Carmichael Elected Mayor of East Point

Howard L. Carmichael, prominent politician and one of East Point's leading civic figures, was overwhelmingly elected mayor of that borough in elections held in the suburb's three wards Wednesday. More than 2,700 citizens registered for the election, the heaviest in the memory of older residents of East Point. Carmichael received 1,458 votes, to win by more than two to one over his opponent, S. W. Ramsey, who was given 724. In the races for seats in council, David J. Hall, serving the unexpired term of the late Dr. R. B. Callahan, was unopposed and elected as member from the first ward. In the second ward a runoff was expected to result from the three-cornered contest among Henry Coleman, who received 421 votes; E. J. Bass, who was given 373, and E. M. Milam, with 222 votes. C. S. Wynn, incumbent councilman from the third ward, won by a close margin over J. R. Griffin. Wynn received 290 to Griffin's 233.

They could not arrest him, and whether they would bring him back for trial was quite undecided tonight. Insull is a British citizen. Platform Demands Cuts In State Costs and Taxes

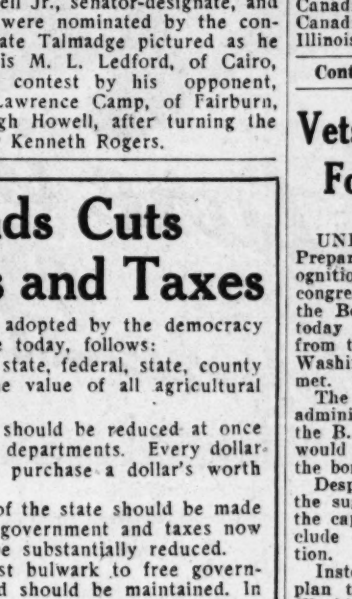

MACON, Ga., Oct. 5.—The platform adopted by the democracy of Georgia, in convention assembled here today, follows: "Taxes levied for all purposes in this state, federal, state, county and municipal, amount to more than the value of all agricultural crops combined. "Expenses of government in all lines should be reduced at once by elimination of all unnecessary jobs and departments. Every dollar of the state's money should be made to purchase a dollar's worth of service, material and supplies. "The great mass of intangible wealth of the state should be made to bear a fair proportion of the cost of government and taxes now being levied on visible property should be substantially reduced. "The common schools are the greatest bulwark to free government and the perpetuation of liberty, and should be maintained. In the conduct of the schools and other educational institutions of the state, economic measure should be taken to insure the greatest benefit to the students possible for the amount of money expended. "Railroad rates, power and light rates, and telephone rates are unreasonable, and should be reduced to a pre-war basis in line with other commodities. "The collection of a service charge by public utilities is unjustified, and should be discontinued. "The valuation of public utilities for rate making and for taxation should be the same. "Automobile license tags are for the purpose of identifying the vehicle only, and cannot be justified as a revenue-raising measure. The cost should be nominal, only enough to defray the cost of furnishing and recording. "We believe that all elected officials of the state are superior to any officials holding appointment under them, and that if under the present laws any appointive official in any department of this state is not subject to the supervision and control of the elective official making such appointment, that such legislation as is necessary to correct this evil should be enacted. "Protective tariffs levied by the federal government have contributed largely to pauperizing the farming interests of the state and nation. Deflation of the currency has inflicted and is inflicting intolerable loss on the people of this state. High interstate freight rates cut farmers out from marketing centers of the country. "Our representatives in the congress should make every possible effort to relieve these conditions. "We believe in the right and principle of collective bargaining, and that the protection of the laborer to the fruits of his labor is as sacred as the protection of property or invested capital, and should be preserved inviolate. "We favor amending the workmen's compensation act, to provide necessary compensation, medical and hospital treatment for injured workers that will at least equal the average of other states. "We favor that the next assembly provide sufficient facilities for the industrial commission so this department can properly function as provided by law in protecting the citizens of our state. "In order to relieve the distress of unemployment, we favor wherever possible by the state the immediate inauguration necessary of projects that will provide employment. On all such work we favor specifications requiring the employment of Georgia citizens and wherever possible Georgia materials. "We urge the division of available work among as many families as possible, and favor legislation securing one day of rest in every seven."

JURY DEADLOCKED OVER CURTIS' FATE IN MURDER CASE

Body Retires for Night
After Debate of 3 Hours,
20 Minutes; Accused Denies Killing Girl.

After deliberating three hours and twenty minutes and failing to reach a verdict, a superior court jury trying Howard Curtis, 28, a barber, married and the father of three children, for the murder of his reputed sweetheart, Annette Bryant, was locked up for the night at 10:10 o'clock Wednesday night. The jury took the case at 5:40 o'clock Wednesday evening and after deliberating an hour was taken to dinner. It resumed its deliberations at 7:30 o'clock and two hours and 10 minutes later reported no verdict possible Wednesday night and asked to be taken to a hotel. The case went to the jury in a special division of the court presided over by Judge James R. Hutcheson, of Douglasville, after a two-day trial in which the state had attempted to prove that the young woman was slain in a jealous rage and the defense had contended that she died by her own hand in a suicide pact that Curtis had lacked the nerve to complete. The day's testimony was featured by two statements of Curtis himself, in which he flatly denied shooting the girl. Continued in Page 10, Column 4.

Vets Defeat Move For 2d Bonus March

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Oct. 5.—(AP)—Preparing a resolution to demand recognition from President Hoover and congress, the executive committee of the Bonus Expeditionary Force late today refused to include a suggestion from the floor for another march on Washington if their demands are not met. The resolution would petition the administration to "publicly recognize" the B. E. F. as an organization and would favor immediate payment of the bonus. Despite a big ovation that greeted the suggestion for another march on the capital, it was decided not to include such a proposal in the petition. Instead the committee approved a plan to send a committee of 10 to Washington to lay before President Hoover, Vice President Curtis and Speaker Garner the list of demands. The committee is to go to Washington immediately after the convention here is ended.

Rites Commemorate Indian Treaty Signing

MEDICINE LODGE, Kan., Oct. 5.—(AP)—Redman and paleface met here today to commemorate the signing, 65 years ago, of a treaty which ended bloody warfare and aided in development of the west. In October, 1867, the United States government signed a treaty with the Kiowa, Comanche, Cheyenne, Arapahoe and Apache tribes which permitted the construction of railroads and wagon roads to the Pacific coast without molestation by the plains Indians. In return, the Indians were allotted reservations to which they moved and on which they since have made their homes.

Great Tribute Paid Governor-To-Be; Nominee

BY R. E. POWELL.
MACON, Ga., Oct. 5.—A tumultuous Georgia democratic convention, cheering and chanting, today nominated Eugene Talmadge for governor and wrote a platform which binds the democratic party to back virtually every plank the governor-designate sponsored in his successful campaign. The great number of side attractions—the presence of senators, senators-designate and figures that have been prominent in democratic conventions for years—did not dim the tribute which the convention paid to Talmadge nor the ardor with which the farmers in attendance greeted him when he appeared before the convention. From the moment that Lawrence S. Camp, retiring state chairman, recognized J. H. Skelton, of Hartsell, to nominate Tom Linder for temporary chairman until Hugh Howell, new party chairman, banged the gavel to call it a two-year job, the convention clicked like a railroad time-piece. With all the state officials to nominate, and all the speeches to make, plus a couple of contests, there wasn't the slightest hitch in the proceedings. The work that, with even the slightest friction, would have carried the convention into a night session, was dispatched with speed and fairness to everybody. Two Senators Nominated. In many respects the meeting here today was singular in political history. For one thing it nominated United States senators—something it hasn't done since the people have been electing them. When the committee brought in its report that State Treasurer M. L. Ledford, in its judgment, had been nominated to succeed himself, there wasn't the slightest doubt but that the convention would sustain the committee. So sure was the convention that half the delegates wanted to leave when Lindley Camp, chairman of the contest committee, read the report that Howell applied to them to stand by held them firm. And there was the hangover from Tuesday night's rally, when United States Senator Alben W. Barkley, Kentucky, promised the party that a new deal would come for the country next March when Franklin D. Roosevelt Continued in Page 4, Column 1.

Collateral Plan Will Liberalize U. S. Loans to Cotton Farmers

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—(AP)—The agriculture department announced today it had "agreed to liberalize the terms of the crop production loans" in the cotton states by a plan involving acceptance of cotton as collateral on the basis of 9 cents per pound middling 7-8 inch. "Borrowers who wish to take advantage of the collateral plan, will be required to deliver their cotton to the Cotton Co-operative Association or to federal bonded warehouses. "When delivered to federal bonded warehouses, the department requires that the cotton be insured and that warehouse receipts be delivered to field agents of the secretary of the regional crop loan collection office. The receipts must be "on sufficient cotton to collateralize the loan at the price above mentioned (9 cents) rather than on the quantity required at current market prices." "In certain areas" the department will allow 9 1/2 cents per pound on middling 7-8 inch cotton. These areas were not described today. The following statement was issued by Henry S. Clarke, director of the 1932 crop production loan office: "At the request of a large number of senators and congressmen, co-operative associations, and individuals in the cotton growing states, the secretary of agriculture has agreed to liberalize the terms of the crop production loans in the cotton states (cotton growing), for the relief of the depressed cotton farmer. "The plan will ease the burden of repayment of such loans and should result in improving the cotton market. "Cotton will be accepted as collateral for crop production loans of 1932 and unpaid balances on loans made prior to 1932." Mr. Clarke continued: "Differentials will be prepared to provide premiums for staple longer than 7-8-inch and grades better than middling and likewise discounts for short staple and lower grades. All cotton deposited as collateral must be graded by federal licensed classifiers. "All cotton so collateralized must be accompanied by an agreement signed by the borrower whereby he reserves the right of selling such cotton at any time prior to March 1, 1933, and authorizes the secretary to sell same in his discretion at any time subsequent to that date." When the cotton is sold, the borrowers will be credited with the sale proceeds. If insufficient to pay the full amount of the loan, the balance will remain as an obligation of the borrower; if more than sufficient to

LEAGUE SEEKS AID FOR CITY, COUNTY

Atlanta, Fulton Bearing Too Much Expense, Tax Body Says.

Contending that Atlanta and Fulton county are bearing more than a just and equitable share of governmental costs of the state, Robert C. Mizell, president of the Taxpayers' League, today will launch a county-wide campaign for co-operation of business leaders, county and city employees and "just the ordinary overburdened taxpayer" in an effort to prevent further "injustices to citizens of this section and additional drastic cuts in the salaries of employees of the municipality and county."

Mizell will send out about 4,000 letters to city employees and members of the Atlanta Public School Teachers' Association today, calling their attention to the "fiscal plight" of the government and warning that further curtailment of services and salary slashes are inevitable unless drastic remedial measures are applied at once.

He has conferred with many leading officials of the city within the last few days, including Mayor James L. Key and Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of schools.

The letter, which he will mail today, cites the fact that Chicago teachers have gone without pay for many months, and takes occasion to warn that a similar condition is facing employees of the local government.

Two points out that curtailments already have been made in various city departments and that heads of those governmental divisions have pointed out that it means a curtailment of services.

"The Taxpayers' League is not committed to any plan, but we realize that something heroic and drastic must be done at once to save the local governments in this time of stress," Mizell said.

"Another thing, taxpayers are overburdened. They cannot now meet the assessments on their properties. Atlanta is now just where it was in 1865 as it lay in ashes following the civil war, except that the situation is even more complicated."

"Our organization in conscientiously offering its services in a co-operative effort of various interests involv-

THE TIME TO KILL A COLD

—is in the First Stage, While it is Yet a "Dry" Cold!

Now it is known that a cold ordinarily passes through three stages. The first is the Dry Stage, the first 24 hours. The second is the Watery Secretion Stage, from 1 to 3 days. The third, the Mucous Secretion stage. Treated in the first stage, a cold is far easier to kill. As a matter of fact, when a cold passes into the second and third stages it is apt to become settled in the system and dangerous.

Nip a cold in the bud by taking Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine as soon as you feel the first symptoms. Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine doesn't merely soothe a cold—it kills it because it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels—kills the cold germs, infection and fever in the system—relieves the headache and grippiness—tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack.

Effective as it is, Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is absolutely safe to take. It contains no narcotics and produces no bad after-effects. Does not upset the stomach or make the head ring. For years this famous tablet has been the relief of thousands in all cases of colds and grippe. Take no chances with a cold so long as this dependable remedy is available. Get Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine at any drug store in America. Comes in convenient, pocket-size box, cellophane-wrapped. No reliable dealer will try to sell you a substitute.

MRS. MARY L. VILLARD PASSES AT AGE OF 84

Mrs. Mary L. Villard, 84, resident of Atlanta for more than 50 years and beloved of a wide circle of friends, died Wednesday at her home, 1111 Lucile avenue, S. W., after a lingering illness. Mrs. Villard received a broken hip in a fall about three years ago and had been in declining health since that injury.

Born in Augusta in 1848, she removed to Atlanta more than half a century ago. Her husband died about 27 years ago, and she lived with her son, J. K. Villard, since.

Funeral services will be held at the residence at 3 o'clock this afternoon, the Rev. Dr. G. W. Gasque, rector of the Church of the Incarnation, of which Mrs. Villard long had been a member, and the Rev. Dr. W. H. Faust, pastor of Gordon Street Baptist church, will officiate. Interment will be in Crest Lawn cemetery.

Surviving Mrs. Villard are three daughters, Mrs. H. E. Rush, of Roswell; Miss Carrie P. Villard, of Atlanta, and Mrs. Julia V. Blount, of Wrightsville, Ga., and four sons, J. K. W. B. A. W. and H. H. Villard, all of Atlanta. Several grandchildren and great-grandchildren also survive.

"PRAYER" IS THEME OF CHURCH SERVICE IN ATLANTA TODAY

"Prayer" will be the theme discussed today in Atlanta churches taking part in the nationwide observance of "Penitence and Prayer Week" by Protestant churches throughout the United States. On each day since observance of the period began, especially suggested programs have been carried out. Today's scripture references, meditation and prayer, as suggested by the sponsors of the period follow:

Daily Text—"Lord, teach us to pray." When ye pray, say, Our Father who art in heaven... Ask, and it shall be given unto you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you. If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children, how much more shall your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to them that ask him?—Luke 11:1-13.

Scripture references: Matt. 14:22-23; Luke 18:1-14; Acts 4:23-31; Matt. 26:36-46; Rom. 8:31-39; Ps. 63:1-7.

Meditation: We have talked about prayer. Now let us pray. The disciples after long companionship with Jesus discovered His secret. They said, "Teach us to pray." They did not say, "Teach us to talk," or "Teach us to write." They did say, "Teach us to pray." Prayer links our human helplessness to the divine sufficiency. The supreme tragedy is to try to do without God. "O Lord, in thee have I trusted. Let me never be confounded." Prayer clears the vision; quiets the nerves; defines duty; strengthens purpose; awakens the spirit and fortifies the soul. Prayer relates the soul to the infinite resources of the Divine. Luther said, "Prayer and providence hinder no man on his journey. We should pray as if all depended upon God and work as though everything depended upon us." It is timely that every Christian should pray for the unemployed, the discouraged, the hungry and the sick. Each one should ask himself some questions about prayer during these days of bewilderment. Do I pray daily? Are my prayers selfish? What are the burdens and concerns of my prayers?

Prayer: Father of our spirits, we lift our hearts to Thee. At the threshold of our petition we cry, "Not my will but Thine be done!" Thou alone knowest our need. May we bow expectantly before Thee, hushing our own eager impetuosity and waiting for Thee to answer in Thine own way. Talk with us Lord, Thyself reveal; so we shall change eyes with Thee and see light in Thy light. Amen.

The classes, which are conducted without payment of fees by those attending, will continue through October 21, from 8 to 9:30 o'clock each morning and from 3:30 to 5 o'clock each afternoon. Dr. Otis Marshall, of Washington, D. C., will conduct the classes.

DAVIS MISTRIAL JUROR FINED FOR CONTEMPT

League Will Hear Radio Address by Nominee. Clay Enthusiastic.

While Atlanta supporters of Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt were preparing to gather at a luncheon at the Ansley hotel at noon today to hear a special radio message from the democratic nominee addressed to members of the Roosevelt Business and Professional League, Ryburn G. Clay, president of the Fulton National bank and director of finance for Georgia for the democratic national committee, continued his work of perfecting county organizations in the drive for Georgia's $30,000 quota.

Mr. Clay returned from the Macon convention Wednesday afternoon with Senator Alben W. Barkley more enthusiastic than ever before over the prospects of the campaign's becoming a tremendous success. While in Macon he had the opportunity to discuss the campaign with a number of associate directors of finance representing counties in many parts of Georgia, and he said that not only were the official workers enthusiastic but that other delegates as well pledged their active co-operation in efforts to make Georgia a compelling factor in the national political arena.

"Not a single associate director of finance with whom I talked," said Mr. Clay, "had any doubt about the success of the drive in his county. On the contrary, everyone asserted his confidence that his quota not only would be raised but would be substantially oversubscribed."

"The delegates generally seem to be impressed with the fact that the campaign funds are sorely needed immediately for use in the doubtful states, and there was determination everywhere to make a record of which Georgia can be proud. Most of the workers, having in mind the fact that Governor Roosevelt will be a visitor to Georgia within the next two weeks, declared that they expect to secure their quotas in time for the record of their country to be called to the personal attention of the democratic nominee when he comes to Georgia."

The luncheon at noon today will be presided over by Charles B. Shelton, Georgia state chairman for the Roosevelt Business and Professional League, who stated that not only members of the league are invited but that the public generally will be welcome. It is expected that many of Georgia's foremost democrats will assemble on this occasion to hear the first address Governor Roosevelt has made direct to members of the league in which he is so interested. Acceptances for the luncheon should be phoned to the league headquarters, 60 Broad street, Jackson 3362.

RAW FURY

"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by Meissonier's famous painting (1855)... inspired by the savage passion held in check by Henry IV's stern edict against duels among the nobles of his court.

—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes

They are not present in Luckies... the mildest cigarette you ever smoked

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

"It's toasted"

That package of mild Luckies

"If a man write a better book, preach a better sermon, or make a better mouse-trap than his neighbor, let him build his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door."—RALPH WALDO EMERSON.

Does not this explain the world-wide acceptance and approval of Lucky Strike?

SUPPORTERS CLAIM VICTORY FOR TURNER

Friends Push Quitman Man for President Pro Tem. of Senate.

MACON, Ga., Oct. 5.—Supporters of S. M. Turner, of Quitman, candidate for president pro tem. of the state senate, tonight claimed victory for their candidate after a two-day campaign here among senators gathered for the biennial state convention of the democratic party.

J. H. Gardner, of Camilla; Oscar Davis, of Quitman, and Walter Burt, of Albany, issued the following statement in behalf of Turner's candidacy, accompanying it with the prediction that his election would be voted by the senate:

"While he has no connection with the big interests of the state, he realizes that the power companies, the railroads and the bus lines are necessary and important factors in the development of the state and should be treated fairly and impartially, also that each should bear an equitable share of the burden of taxation."

"He feels that the debts of the state should be paid by reducing the expenses of the state government and not by raising taxes."

"He knows that the taxes on real estate should be reduced as rapidly as possible and removed."

"He feels that the tax on gasoline should not be increased."

"He feels that school teachers and soldiers and widows of soldiers should be paid promptly."

"He feels that remedial legislation should be enacted assuring farmers of better marketing facilities."

COUNTY RELIEF FUNDS TO BE READY SOON

Due to the fact that the county has not as yet obtained the first installment of federal relief funds which arrived at the Federal Reserve bank Tuesday, a special meeting of the board of county commissioners called for today to consider the setup for disbursements in direct relief, has been postponed temporarily, according to George F. Longino, chairman of the finance committee.

The funds have not been obtained, due to the fact that the signature of Governor Russell must be attested before the money can be turned over to the county.

This will be done, it was said, upon the return from the democratic state convention of Secretary of State John B. Wilson.

Fifty and Fit

A MAN is as old—or as young—as his organs.

At fifty, you can be in your prime.

Why go along with "fairly good health" when you might be enjoying vigor you haven't felt for years?

There's a simple little thing anyone can do to keep the vital organs stimulated, and feel fit all the time. People don't realize how sluggish they've grown until they've tried it. The stimulant that will stir your system to new life is Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin. It will make a most amazing difference in many ways.

This famous doctor's prescription is a delicious syrup made with fresh herbs, active senna, and pure pepsin. It starts its good work with the first spoonful. That's all you need to drive away the dullness and headache of a bilious spell, and rid the system of that slow poison that saps your strength. It's better than a tonic for tired bowels, and unlike habit-forming laxatives you can take it freely or give it to any child. And it isn't expensive.

Get some syrup pepsin today, and take a little tonight. Don't wait until you're sick to give your system this wonderful help. You can avoid those spells of biliousness or constipation. A spoonful every now and then is better than constant worry about the condition of your bowels, or fear of auto-intoxication as you grow older. Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin protects the system. All druggists keep this preparation.

CHEERING CONVENTION NOMINATES TALMADGE

veit and John N. Garner are elected president and vice president. This morning's after effect brought the younger democrats of the state prominently before their elders and gave them an unmistakable place in the democratic world.

Taladge had to do with the partial and noisy reception which the delegates gave to Talmadge. Naturally, it was the governor-designate's party. But the boys who, defeated candidates said, stood behind trees waiting for the chance to drop a Talmadge ballot in the box, were here to fraternize with the lawyers, doctors, preachers and politicians who whop it up for the man who promised them he would bring about some changes in the existing order.

Some of the boys who Talmadge drove home and his words struck fire with visitors and delegates alike. He delighted the crowd with a statement that some readjustments and amputations are in order.

"The only way," he said, "to bring the excessive cost of government down is to abolish some useless boards and commissions and to reduce salaries to a war-time level."

He struck another blow against the pending constitutional amendment to classify intangible property for taxation and said that the next legislature would be to enact a law with teeth in it that would put invisible property on the tax books so that it would pay its fair proportion to all units of government, state, county and city. He pledged himself to see that school taxes went 100 percent to the schools and that under the administration highway dollars would hit the roadbed.

Contest Concluded Quickly.
The Leford-Hamilton contest was disposed of quickly. As soon as the chairman of the contest committee, Lindley Camp, announced to the convention that the action of the county committee rejecting Hamilton was null and void, the contest was over.

Senator-designate George W. Lankford, one of the defeated candidates for the post, was given the floor to speak for Leford, and to ask his supporters to back the incumbent.

"If this convention," he said, "were to nominate me on the face of official returns, I would decline to accept it. I would decline to accept it. Winning by four votes, under our unit system, is as good as winning by a landslide."

Senator-designate J. Tuten, of Alma, spent five minutes contending that first unofficial returns showed Hamilton to have been the nominee, and that every one of the counties named, had been switched.

Hamilton himself told the convention he believed he had been nominated but pledged himself to support the nominee of the convention.

Carlie, of Cairo, Leford's home town, closed for the treasurer. The comparatively small number of delegates at the session was impatient. Before Carlie had fairly started his speech there arose a swelling demand for a roll call, but under the roll was called by Leford for the "ayes" showed that Leford had won the nomination by acclamation.

Sanford Makes Seconding Talk.
There was one unique point in the convention today—when President S. V. Sanford, of the University of Georgia, an Abit Nix, delegate to the convention, made a seconding speech for the governor-to-be.

The former dean, instructor of both Talmadge and Nix, called his audience with a part of his famous yams and then waxed serious.

"Abit Nix," he said, "is a true sport. He is not sulking. He and I are at the same time. They respected another's views then and they do now. As Abit's personal representative, I am here to express his confidence in Governor-elect Talmadge."

Relating some of the honors Talmadge had won at the university, particularly in his graduating year, President Sanford said:

"No man can say that he is not eminently qualified by education, training, his knowledge of men and of the affairs of the state to be governor of Georgia."

"The will of the people honestly and fairly chose him to be the place with satisfaction to himself and the people. I have known him intimately for years and I know him to be a man of rare ability, strong personality, firm determination and vested with leadership."

Skelton Nominates Linder.
Shortly after the gavel sounded that opened the session, E. J. Skelton, nominating Tom Linder for temporary chairman, urged the delegates to go back home and demand that their representatives in the general assembly should keep their eyes on the senate and speaker of the house men who were in accord with the Talmadge twelve-point program. He ventured that under Talmadge's reign the school teachers would be paid as promptly as college professors and that the pensioners would get money as quickly as state house officials.

Linder's nomination was seconded by Lindley Camp and the temporary chairman was escorted to the platform of the auditorium by a committee headed by Watkins, Edwards, and Ellijay.

Senator Hugh Peterson's motion established the order of business after Linder's keynote speech, Charles E. Stewart, of Coffee, took the floor as convention spokesman for the incoming administration. The appointment of a credentials committee headed by J. J. E. Anderson, preceded the selection of Hugh Howell as permanent chairman. Howell was placed in nomination by David L. Ware, Ware county, and seconded by Senator Charles Redwine, of Fayette.

Miss Orr Nominated.
Senator J. J. Mangum, chief of the Talmadge campaign board of strategy, placed Miss Eleanor Orr in nomination for secretary. His brief nominating speech evoked a demonstration but when the secretary-elect herself, escorted by a committee headed by Allen Post, came on the platform the attention there was waiting for something to get hot and bothered about—when figuratively, an Eleanor Orr picture explains why it was.

Skelton and Mangum were chosen swiftly for vice chairmen, Howell not even waiting for a second when it appeared to him that the convention was action-minded. He named his credentials committee and the stage was set for the nomination of the governor.

This was eloquently done by Judge Eschel Graham, of McRae, lifelong friend and political adviser to the nominee. Judge Graham recalled Governor Roosevelt's recent references to the "forgotten man" and assured the convention that Talmadge, in Georgia, would keep the forgotten man in mind just as Roosevelt would in the country.

On the committee to bring the governor-designate into the convention, Howell named E. W. Maynard, of Athens, and Speaker Arlie Tucker, of Berrien county, and President Sanford closed the nomination.

Talmadge To Lead State To New Era, Linder Says

Macon, Ga., Oct. 5.—Hailing Governor-designate Eugene Talmadge as a new leader who will restore the government of Georgia to the people, Tom Linder, temporary chairman and keynote of the state democratic convention, today called for a reduction of taxes and a simultaneous slash in the costs of government.

Linder highly praised Talmadge's career as commissioner of agriculture and said he was positive that Talmadge would lead the state in a determined effort to rehabilitate itself.

His address follows:

I am most humbly grateful to you for the honor conferred of serving as your temporary chairman.

Linder said that the younger generation has gathered together the body of Georgia democracy at a time when I would have deemed this a greater honor.

Today we face conditions such as we have never seen; today we must look for guidance and leadership to the sanest, bravest and most unselfish of our people.

At the same time the expenditures of government have increased until today the cost of government in this state for all purposes is all agricultural crops combined.

The people of this state, seeing this condition with the courage of their forefathers to right the wrong, have seen fit to call to lead them at this crisis a man whose name is a household word all over the state as to ability, courage and unselfishness; a man to whom we can confidently look for leadership unafraid.

A New Leader Arises.
We people who live on the sandy plains of south Georgia found that a proper mixture of clay and sand would build the best dirt road in the state. You people in north Georgia found that sand mixed with your clay made a far superior road to an all clay road. Still later we found that this sand-clay road made an excellent foundation for a concrete highway.

Georgia has today called as a leader a man whose youth was spent on the red old hills and whose mature years, before being called into public service, was spent on the sandy lands of south Georgia making the sand-clay foundation for future building.

On the cement of this experience as a state official provided on this sand-clay foundation has developed a concrete leadership to which Georgia is entitled. The people of Georgia overwhelmingly indorsed on September 14.

A man who has been tried in the fiery furnace of public life, a man who has been weighed in the balance of public opinion over and over again. His noble and courageous action as commissioner of agriculture, exposing, through the columns of the Market Bulletin, unfair practices against the farmers and general public, and his efforts to give the people of Georgia a state official provided on this sand-clay foundation has developed a concrete leadership to which Georgia is entitled.

Presenting the governor-designate to the convention and confiding that it would support his administration, Linder introduced Talmadge as a "tribune of the masses and a champion of the people."

Anxious to get the major items, except the question of the vote before the lunch recess, Howell moved to set the program up two notices and had both senators nominated before the lunch recess. Senator-designate Judge E. S. Ault, of Cedarburg, introduced Senator George to succeed himself, and Senator-designate Richard B. Rusk, of Macon, introduced Governor-elect Talmadge to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator William J. Harris.

Seconding speeches were dispensed with and every one of the counties named, had been switched.

Among the resolutions adopted by the convention today was one urging support of the governor-elect for the repayment to the counties of funds advanced to the highway commission; another calling for party regularity; and another expressing sympathy of the convention to Congressman Charles H. Brand, sick at his home in Athens.

The amendment to provide for voting on payment of poll tax only received the convention approval, the Roosevelt highway from Atlanta to Columbus was indorsed. National Committeeman John S. Cohen and National Committeewoman Mrs. Edgar Alexander were thanked for their support of the governor-elect.

The convention recommended that in the future each county be left on its own rules for the election of the county committee. At the afternoon session, on motion of Floor Leader Stewart, all state house and senate members were given the right of exceptions of treasurer and the solicitor-general in the Dublin circuit. Here, after a hearing, the contest committee over-ruled the J. M. Hamilton nomination, which the convention upheld without either argument or a single negative vote.

Chairman Howell sent the following wire to Governor Roosevelt at Albany:

The democrats of Georgia in cordial greetings to you as a son of Georgia and the standard bearer of the eternal principles of equal rights to all and special privileges to none. You have your share of the state and its victory to the cause of the common people.

Just before adjournment, delegates gave a rousing vote of thanks to Chairman Howell for the manner in which he had conducted the day's proceedings. Likewise, a vote of thanks was given by the lawyers, both sides in the Leford-Hamilton contest.

The chairman also was praised for the manner in which he kept the attention of the convention on matters pertinent to sections. When the Leford-Hamilton contest was decided a large number of delegates started for the contest, but the chairman called them back to their seats and urged that all give their attention to the contest on the Dublin solicitor-generalship.

Business was transacted through the chairman, urged through the loud speaker. "We do not want it said that a Talmadge convention failed to give any man everything that he could get. We have another contest to decide here and I urge every delegate to remain in his seat until that contest is disposed of."

During a lull in the afternoon session, Miss Caroline Noble Jones, Savannah vice president of the Roosevelt Motor Club of Georgia, presented the Roosevelt motor medal to Chairman Howell and enrolled him as the first official member of the Georgia division.

Young democrats came in for further convention honors when Howell presented Miss Margaret Elizabeth Tate, of Macon, Georgia's national committee woman of the Young Democrats of America. She came before the microphone and pledged her organization's hearty support of the Roosevelt-Garner administration.

After the convention had adjourned the new chairman, Mr. Howell, issued a statement, in which he thanked the delegates for the attention they gave to the business of the session and praised all parties who appeared with contests for the manner in which they conducted themselves.

"Georgia's democracy is united for the common cause," Chairman Howell said. "The convention was without discord. Business was transacted accurately and swiftly. We are ready to carry on and at no time will there be a let-down. Georgia always has been a democratic state and the party's banner will forever be unfurled in the state's political halls. We will strive to continue the progress made in the past. It is in the people's party and the people will work for its glory everlasting."

have accumulated millions of dollars out of the wealth produced by their toil.

Vision Dimmed Today.
Today the lowering clouds of economic depression loom all around the horizon and dim our vision; today the homes of our people are in danger of being sold for taxes or have already passed under the hammer and good men and women whose lives have been spent in rearing and training families are faced in old age with poverty and want.

Today we see every product of the farm selling for less than the cost of production, businessmen and professional men unable to make a decent living, while the work is actually at the door of thousands of the poorer classes in the state.

At the same time the expenditures of government have increased until today the cost of government in this state for all purposes is all agricultural crops combined.

The people of this state, seeing this condition with the courage of their forefathers to right the wrong, have seen fit to call to lead them at this crisis a man whose name is a household word all over the state as to ability, courage and unselfishness; a man to whom we can confidently look for leadership unafraid.

On the cement of this experience as a state official provided on this sand-clay foundation has developed a concrete leadership to which Georgia is entitled. The people of Georgia overwhelmingly indorsed on September 14.

A man who has been tried in the fiery furnace of public life, a man who has been weighed in the balance of public opinion over and over again. His noble and courageous action as commissioner of agriculture, exposing, through the columns of the Market Bulletin, unfair practices against the farmers and general public, and his efforts to give the people of Georgia a state official provided on this sand-clay foundation has developed a concrete leadership to which Georgia is entitled.

Presenting the governor-designate to the convention and confiding that it would support his administration, Linder introduced Talmadge as a "tribune of the masses and a champion of the people."

Anxious to get the major items, except the question of the vote before the lunch recess, Howell moved to set the program up two notices and had both senators nominated before the lunch recess. Senator-designate Judge E. S. Ault, of Cedarburg, introduced Senator George to succeed himself, and Senator-designate Richard B. Rusk, of Macon, introduced Governor-elect Talmadge to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator William J. Harris.

Seconding speeches were dispensed with and every one of the counties named, had been switched.

Among the resolutions adopted by the convention today was one urging support of the governor-elect for the repayment to the counties of funds advanced to the highway commission; another calling for party regularity; and another expressing sympathy of the convention to Congressman Charles H. Brand, sick at his home in Athens.

The amendment to provide for voting on payment of poll tax only received the convention approval, the Roosevelt highway from Atlanta to Columbus was indorsed. National Committeeman John S. Cohen and National Committeewoman Mrs. Edgar Alexander were thanked for their support of the governor-elect.

The convention recommended that in the future each county be left on its own rules for the election of the county committee. At the afternoon session, on motion of Floor Leader Stewart, all state house and senate members were given the right of exceptions of treasurer and the solicitor-general in the Dublin circuit. Here, after a hearing, the contest committee over-ruled the J. M. Hamilton nomination, which the convention upheld without either argument or a single negative vote.

Chairman Howell sent the following wire to Governor Roosevelt at Albany:

The democrats of Georgia in cordial greetings to you as a son of Georgia and the standard bearer of the eternal principles of equal rights to all and special privileges to none. You have your share of the state and its victory to the cause of the common people.

Just before adjournment, delegates gave a rousing vote of thanks to Chairman Howell for the manner in which he had conducted the day's proceedings. Likewise, a vote of thanks was given by the lawyers, both sides in the Leford-Hamilton contest.

The chairman also was praised for the manner in which he kept the attention of the convention on matters pertinent to sections. When the Leford-Hamilton contest was decided a large number of delegates started for the contest, but the chairman called them back to their seats and urged that all give their attention to the contest on the Dublin solicitor-generalship.

Business was transacted through the chairman, urged through the loud speaker. "We do not want it said that a Talmadge convention failed to give any man everything that he could get. We have another contest to decide here and I urge every delegate to remain in his seat until that contest is disposed of."

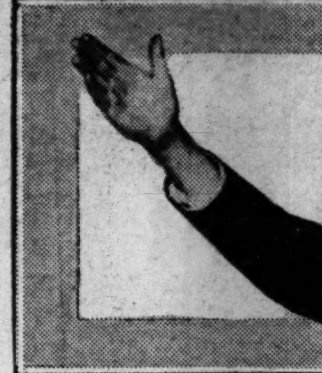

During a lull in the afternoon session, Miss Caroline Noble Jones, Savannah vice president of the Roosevelt Motor Club of Georgia, presented the Roosevelt motor medal to Chairman Howell and enrolled him as the first official member of the Georgia division.

Young democrats came in for further convention honors when Howell presented Miss Margaret Elizabeth Tate, of Macon, Georgia's national committee woman of the Young Democrats of America. She came before the microphone and pledged her organization's hearty support of the Roosevelt-Garner administration.

After the convention had adjourned the new chairman, Mr. Howell, issued a statement, in which he thanked the delegates for the attention they gave to the business of the session and praised all parties who appeared with contests for the manner in which they conducted themselves.

"Georgia's democracy is united for the common cause," Chairman Howell said. "The convention was without discord. Business was transacted accurately and swiftly. We are ready to carry on and at no time will there be a let-down. Georgia always has been a democratic state and the party's banner will forever be unfurled in the state's political halls. We will strive to continue the progress made in the past. It is in the people's party and the people will work for its glory everlasting."

Government by People Is Assured State, Hugh Howell Says in Taking Chairmanship

Above is a new photograph of Hugh Howell, of Atlanta, who Wednesday was elected chairman of the democratic state central committee.

MAcon, Oct. 5.—Accepting the office of state chairman, Hugh Howell said:

Ladies and gentlemen of the convention:

I am deeply appreciative of the honor you have conferred upon me. I accept it as a great honor from a cross-section of Georgia, but I also accept this position as one of great responsibility.

The voice of the people of Georgia has spoken in no uncertain terms. That voice has declared that the next administration of Georgia will be a government by the people and for the people.

The time has come in the history of this state when we are faced with a condition, and not a theory. There are too many homes being sold for mortgages in Georgia; there are too many abandoned farms throughout the length and breadth of this state; there are too many able-bodied men and women walking our streets, able, willing and wanting to work, who have no jobs; there are women who bathe their pillows in tears at night because they have been unable to get food for their hungry children; there are boys and girls who want to go to school, but cannot, first, because they have no clothes to wear, and second, because they have no money for school.

Here in this state we find unemployment, abandoned farms, closed schools and hungry men and women, and that condition should not be.

If the election which has just been had means anything, it means that the people of Georgia are determined to carry out the fundamental issues which the last governor, and those who followed him, made his administration was based on making a honest living for our men and women, first and foremost.

The work of this convention is not over when we adjourn tonight. The real work for the good of the state has just begun, and it behooves every member of this convention, and every honest, liberty-loving Georgian man and woman to stand shoulder to shoulder and heart to heart with the next governor of Georgia, to carry out the platform to be adopted by this convention, and to aid the next governor in a successful administration. He cannot do this alone, but it will take the united spirit of all unselfish Georgians to help put over the program which he proclaimed during this campaign.

For me, in my humble way, here in the presence of this great democratic convention, I pledge the limit of my ability and my efforts as a private citizen of Georgia, to aid him in every way possible, and I call upon you, and each of you to pledge your efforts and consecrate your talents and ability toward carrying out the platform to be adopted by this convention, and if we do this loyally and unselfishly, we will make history in Georgia, and the next administration will go down in history as being one that served the people of Georgia.

And so my countrymen, let us all join hands, heads and hearts, and undertake to aid one of Georgia's most distinguished sons, the next governor of Georgia, to make his administration a success.

SENATOR GEORGE LAUDS TALMADGE IN MACON SPEECH

MAcon, Ga., Oct. 5.—A pledge to fight the battles of all the people of Georgia when he takes his seat in the United States senate was made to the democratic state convention here today by Governor-elect Eugene Talmadge.

Governor-elect Talmadge said he did not desire to take up the time of the state convention with national problems but declared that he would continue to hold the problems of Georgia and Georgia's uppermost in his mind and work untiringly for their elimination.

The governor's address follows:

The state convention of the democratic party in Georgia, meeting to declare the nominees of the party and to elect the delegates to the national convention, by law and by custom revolves around the nominee of our party for governor of Georgia. Its deliberations are chiefly devoted to the selection of the party's nominee for governor and the welfare of Georgia.

As one placed in nomination for the United States senate, I shall not disturb the atmosphere of the occasion nor tax the patience of the delegates assembled with any lengthy discussion of national issues.

Nevertheless, I cannot express to the people of my native state the depth of my appreciation for the confidence expressed in me at the platform of the party. While this expression of confidence is a great honor, it is also a heavy responsibility. I am not only the representative of the people of Georgia, but I am also the representative of the people of the United States.

Waste, extravagance and inefficiency are the enemies of the people of Georgia. I am determined to see that the state's money is spent wisely and that the people of Georgia are not burdened with unnecessary expenses and unnecessary taxes.

The great agricultural interests of the state are poverty-stricken. Every farmer in Georgia is looking for a handout. One hundred and twelve years ago Georgia had as governor a man from south Georgia, who defied the forces of the industrial east and demand equal rights for the people of Georgia. He was a better and brighter day to dawn for this great nation. Now is the time to begin in earnest the restoration of the rights of this people.

But, my fellow countrymen, when that day does dawn, do not forget that the fight has just begun, for equal rights for the whole people. We must continue to fight for the rights of the people of Georgia, and we must continue to fight for the rights of the people of the United States.

I have never seen him compromise with what he believed to be wrong or change his course for expediency's sake. He is one Georgian who I know and who I believe will stand for the same glass; considers the needs, rights and duties of all men unbiased by whether they are rich or poor or whether they are of our country or of another.

The contest for governor and other state house officers has been determined by the sovereign people at the ballot box and now let's all good Georgians as one man back them up. Let the principles advocated by the successful candidate for governor be carried out to the letter. Let the principles just as the poet said of the sword of Lee:

"Forth from its scabbard, high in air,
Beneath Virginia's sky—
And there they saw it gleaming
And knew who bore it, knelt to swear
That where that sword led they would dare
To follow—and to die."

Pledge To Fight Battles Of State Made by Russell

Human institutions have never achieved perfection, and there is nothing in human experience to justify the belief that they ever will. But we have no choice but to try to make the best of the situation as it is, and to strive for the better.

To these things I shall wholeheartedly dedicate my every effort in my endeavor to justify the faith and confidence of the people of my state.

Whatever may come, I shall not forget the inarticulate masses who have no representatives to plead their case. Without regard to personal political fortunes, I shall labor to promote the welfare of the great masses of the people who have honored me.

Expenses, Taxes Must Be Cut, Talmadge Tells Georgians

MAcon, Ga., Oct. 5.—Georgia's deficit of more than $9,000,000 can be wiped out in four years and at the same time taxes can and will be reduced by an effective reduction in the costs of state government can be accomplished, Governor-designate Eugene Talmadge said here today in his address before the state democratic convention.

Mr. Talmadge's address follows:

Georgia is facing the problem of adjusting expenses of government to the present time and a high salary.

Just prior to the entrance of America into and during the World War, this country, Georgia included, experienced a period of high prices and high salaries. With those of our young men taken out of the channels of business, there was a try and demand for everyone to go to work. Nobody but a trouble getting a job and a high salary.

It also became necessary during the war to enlarge the governmental agencies and our appropriations. After the war was over, our young men came back home looking for jobs or investments in establishing businesses of their own. This, coupled with the fact that we became a retrenchment of prices on everything, put the state in a predicament.

Our multiplicity of government and expense of government has not decreased since the war; but, on the other hand, has increased. In part this was due to the fact that with the thousands of people without employment, the pay roll of the state seemed to be the safe harbor for the influential and affluent. This, of course, brought about the condition of our pyramiding taxes to meet the expense of the continued increase in governmental agencies.

The gradual increase of the prices on raw products since the war has practically destroyed the value of our farm lands. Yet, in the main, the value when returned for

CONSERVATIVES MEET IN ENGLAND THURSDAY

BLACKPOOL, England, Oct. 5.—(AP)—Delegates numbering 1,750, the representatives of conservative organizations in England, Wales, Scotland and northern Ireland, will assemble here tomorrow for the annual conference of the conservative party. This is the first annual conference since new rules reduced the total delegates from an unwieldy 8,000.

Political Leaders Leaving by Plane

Stress of political happenings and the necessity of quick travel has made several political leaders of Georgia "air-minded" according to aviation officials. Among those who have booked passage for air travel are Miss Stella Akin, retiring democratic state committee secretary; Governor-designate Eugene Talmadge, Hugh Howell, new chairman of the state committee, and William B. Hartsfield, assembly nominee from Fulton county.

Miss Akin will fly to New York Thursday via Eastern Air Transport to assume her duties as a staff member of Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt's national campaign headquarters. Mr. Talmadge, Mr. Howell and Mr. Hartsfield will depart Friday for Miami, Fla., on the first leg of a flight to Havana.

2 DEAD, SEVERAL HURT IN CAROLINA STORM

CHERAW, S. C., Oct. 5.—(AP)—Two persons were killed, several were injured and severe damage was done by a windstorm of tornado proportions which struck sections of Chesterfield, Darlington and Marlboro counties today.

The dead: Bobbie Blalock, five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Blalock, of Kimberly, Chesterfield county, three miles from Cheraw; a negro woman at Patrick, Chesterfield county.

RIVER-RAIL RATES ON COTTON REDUCED

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 5.—(AP)—The Federal Barge Line has announced its joint river-rail rates on cotton moving from the lower Mississippi valley.

The new tariff became effective on the east side of the river today and will be effective on the west side October 9.

Where the east side all-rail rate is 30 cents on minimum carload weights of 37,500 pounds, the combination rate will be 28 cents. In districts that have a 25-cent rate on minimum carload shipments of 65,000 pounds, the joint river-rail rate will be the same.

BRITAIN'S ARMS PLAN IS OPPOSED BY FRANCE

Herriot Says London Proposal Constitutes Trap for French.

PARIS, Oct. 5.—(UP)—The government of Premier Edouard Herriot is opposed to a four or five-power conference in London for discussion of Germany's demand for arms equality, it became known today after the cabinet had met.

While no definite action was taken, since a formal invitation to take part in the conference has not as yet been received from Britain, it was known that a majority of the ministers, including Premier Herriot, opposed the idea.

The French claim such a conference would virtually be a trap, and that they would be isolated in their opposition to Germany's demands. They point out that Italy has repeatedly expressed sympathy for the German armament claims, while the recent British memorandum admitted these claims were justified in equity, though not in law.

If continued outside pressure forces Premier Herriot to consent to French participation, he probably will insist that Belgium, Poland and Czechoslovakia should participate.

Although the original order, a writ of mandamus directing the recount, was confirmed Saturday by the supreme court, Robles today held that the supreme court's opinion had established the legality of the count in six of the eight precincts, and that it was useless to recount those precincts.

Chicago Policewoman Makes Splendid Record

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—(P)—Automobile thieves will do well to keep out of the path of Policewoman Alice McCarthy, who carries a big pistol and knows how to use it. Records of the police department revealed today disclosed that she had arrested 40 motor car thieves during the summer.

"Miss McCarthy is equal to any man on my force," said Police Captain Timothy Howard, her commanding officer. "How do you do it?" she was asked.

"I put a gun on them and tell them to drive to the station, and they go," she replied.

BRITISH LABOR PARTY BACKS SOCIALIZATION
LEICESTER, Eng., Oct. 5.—(P)—Sweeping aside the objections of its leader, Arthur Henderson, the labor party conference today carried a resolution declaring the establishment of a socialist society to be the main objective of the party.

The program for achieving this end probably would include nationalization of the Bank of England and joint stock banks, but it would not affect the constitutional position of the crown should the labor party come into power.

Mr. Henderson warned the conference against adopting the resolution, but it was warmly supported by Sir Charles Trevellyn, formerly a liberal and once minister of education in a labor government.

Mr. Henderson was re-elected secretary and treasurer of the party by acclamation.

RAIL WAGE PARLEYS WILL BE CONTINUED

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—(P)—Heads of the country's leading railroads met here today and agreed to continue further negotiations with the Railway Labor Executives Association on the proposed 20 per cent cut in the basic wage scales of rail workers.

"At the meeting this morning," said a statement issued after the session, "the conference committee of managers reported to the railway presidents on the progress of wage negotiations to date. After full discussion the matter was left with the committee to negotiate further with the Railway Labor Executives Association."

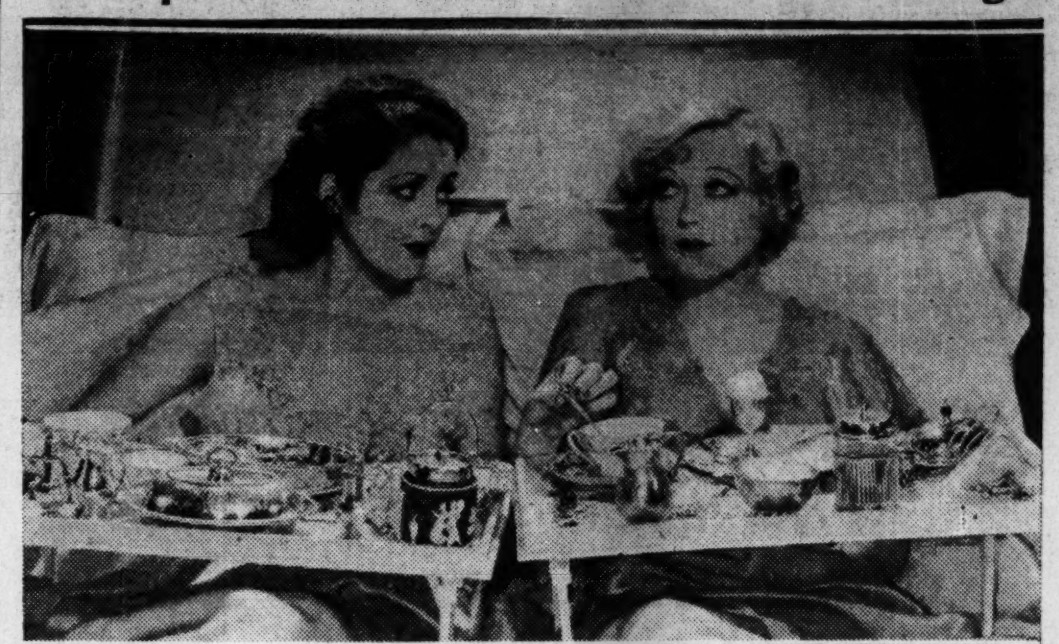

shows, 10 of them, their 12 novelty rides and the permanent rides at the park will all be in full operation today to entertain and thrill the "Governor's Day" crowds.

Poultrymen Attend.

In spite of Wednesday's bad weather, the National Poultry Association, holding its 57th annual convention in Atlanta this week, held its convention barbecue at the fairgrounds in the afternoon, after which the 125 delegates attended one of the educational programs of the convention which was held in the poultry building in which live birds were used for demonstration.

E. C. Branch, of Lees Summit, Mo., conducted the discussion, using as his subject, "The Relation of the Score Card to Comparison Judging." Awards in the women's work exhibits were announced Wednesday by Mrs. H. Q. Terrell, superintendent of this department. Entries from Chipley, Ga., won practically all of the major awards. The Chipley Woman's Club had the best club display of clothing; the Chipley 4-H Club had the best club display in canning; Mrs. J. J. Hadley, of Chipley, had the best exhibit of canned vegetables; Mrs. Lawrence Dunlap, of Chipley, won the award for the best canned fruit; Mrs. H. B. Clark, of Catana, was awarded first place for pickles, vinegar and fruit juices, and the Cherokee County Council of Canton, had the best exhibit of jellies.

Gorgeous New Theater, Loew's Grand, Opens With Gala Performance Tonight

Billie Dove (left) and Marion Davies in a scene from "Blondie of the Follies," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer feature, which opens the new Loew's Grand theater tonight.

Atlanta's beautiful new house of amusement, Loew's Grand theater, opens its doors to the general public with a gala performance at 8:30. At that time a brief program of speeches, during which Colonel Ed A. Schiller, executive vice president of Loew's, Inc., will present the new theater to Atlanta, and Mayor James L. Key and Governor-elect Eugene Talmadge will accept on behalf of the city and state, will be given. Immediately the first Atlanta showing of the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, "Blondie of the Follies," will begin. The cast of this story of back-stage life in New York includes Robert Montgomery, Billie Dove, Jimmy Durante and Marion Davies.

There will be a brilliant first-night audience at the premiere performance. Included among the guests will be more than two score prominent Atlantans, who were present at the opening night of the old Grand, nearly 50 years ago. And, among those "original first-nighters" will be three who were ushers at the premiere half a century ago. They are F. N. Boynton, Johnny Peel and Tom Cooper.

The new theater is strikingly different from anything seen in Atlanta in the past. In fact it embodies a type of theater architecture and decoration new to the entire world, only two other theaters, both Loew houses, being of similar arrangement. One of these is a new house in Rochester, N. Y., while the other is now under construction in South Africa.

The decorative scheme is strikingly modern. It is reminiscent of the plans for the new Radio City in New York and also carries a suggestion of the buildings now being constructed for the World's Fair in Chicago.

From the technical standpoint, the equipment is the latest in projection and sound reproduction and, also, in the heating, cooling and ventilating system of the theater. Many of the devices used are installed for the first time in any theater in the world and a large group of technical experts from the headquarters of Loew's, Inc., in New York, is in the city to observe these improvements in operation.

Accompanying Colonel Schiller to Atlanta for the opening was Mosco Witz, Loew's chief construction engineer. The theater will be under the management of Herb Jennings, who was transferred here from Memphis, where he has been city manager for Loew's for the past three years. Gus Henderson will be assistant manager, while Lionel H. Keene, southern division manager for Loew's, will have supervision over the house. Its policy will consist of exclusive run showings of the finest feature productions from the studios of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and United Artists.

The regular continuous performance schedule will start on Friday morning at 11:15. Among the first-nighters who attended the opening of the old Grand and who will be present tonight are: Former Governor John M. Slaton, Leonard J. Haas, John W. Grant, R. F. Maddox, Preston Arkwright, John A. Grant, Miss Blanche C. Haas, Miss Clementine Haas, Mrs. C. L. Meador, Mrs. W. P. Nicholson, F. H. Cooleage Sr., Martin Amoroso, Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, Mrs. Henry C. Kubit, Mrs. Charlie Norther, Miss Aileen Stocking, A. F. Bellinger, Eugene F. King, B. F. Bennett, Henry Wellhouse, Victor L. Smith, Will Black, R. L. Foreman Sr., H. H. Cabiniss, Miss Mildred Cabiniss, Mrs. James K. Jordan, P. K. Alfred, J. H. Porter, H. L. English, Mr. J. R. Gray.

PROSECUTION RESTS IN TRIAL OF PURYEAR

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 5.—(P)—The testimony on which the state hopes to send Stanley A. Puryear to the electric chair was completed today.

Judge Phil Wallace adjourned criminal court after Attorney-General W. T. McLean announced, "the state rests." The trial will be resumed tomorrow morning with testimony by the defense.

Puryear is on trial for the fatal wounding of Will Jamison, a negro. He contends he killed the negro after the negro backed his wife and 8-year-old daughter to death with an ax at the Puryear home the morning of May 2.

The state contends the negro was killed by Puryear in the used car dealer's effort to "cover up" his own connection with the crime.

PRINCE MICHAEL LEAVES MOTHER
FOLLOWING VISIT

LONDON, Oct. 5.—(P)—Crown Prince Michael, of Rumania, who has been visiting his mother, Princess Helen, estranged wife of King Carol, here for two weeks, left today by motor for Dover to return home.

Princess Helen was quoted by the Daily Mail yesterday as saying the king had short the prince's visit because he resented the publicity given the event.

She seemed lonely as they left in a big automobile. She was dressed in black, relieved only by a silver fur piece, and accompanied by her sister, Princess Irene, of Greece.

KING CAROL IS ARROUSED
BY HELEN'S ACCUSATIONS

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Oct. 5.—(P)—King Carol bitterly denounced today the accusation, treated to his former wife, Princess Helen, by a London newspaper, that he had cut short the visit of Crown Prince Michael to London because of the publicity given him.

"How untrue, unjust and unfair," the king exclaimed to those near him after he had been given the gist of his former wife's remarks in a long distance telephone conversation yesterday.

To think that this should be thrown in my face, he said, "when during the two years of my exile in Paris I was not permitted to see Michael once, although I repeatedly sought permission to do so."

JUDGE REFUSES TO ACT ON STERLING PROTEST

AUSTIN, Texas, Oct. 5.—(P)—District Judge W. F. Robertson held today he did not have jurisdiction to try an election contest suit filed by Governor R. M. Sterling to test the right of Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson to enter the November election as the democratic candidate for governor.

Proceedings in the district court will be discontinued, at least until the higher courts have passed on the question of jurisdiction.

Once Wealthy Official, Destitute, Takes Life

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—(P)—Forty-eight cents told the story of the death of J. E. Morehouse, about 47, formerly prominent in the motor car industry in New York and Detroit. He was found dead in a Loop hotel shortly after midnight with a bullet in his head. A note said he was "another victim of the depression."

Morehouse, whose home was at Great Neck, Long Island, N. Y., formerly was manager of the New York offices of the Stroumberg Car-buretor Company and a few years ago was wealthy, his friends said.

On the dresser of his hotel room was 48 cents, all the money he had with him. The change was laid out beside six letters, one addressed to his wife, three to friends, one to an undertaker and the other to the "authorities, coroner or what have you."

Street Car Man to U. S. Judge Record of Griffith, 70 Today

U. S. COMMISSIONER E. S. GRIFFITH

On the first day of August, 1890, the driver of a street car in Birmingham shouted "Whoa!" to his old mule "Scenery," left the street railway system to its own devices, and, with little more than $200 capital in his pocket, started out to study law. Today that man, United States Commissioner E. S. Griffith, is observing his seventieth birthday at his federal building by working as usual.

Judge Griffith was born near Drakestown, in Paulding county, on October 6, 1862, while Civil War guns were booming. He was the son of Wilson and Eliza Hutcheson Griffith.

As a result of the trials incident to seeking out a living on the post-war farm, Judge Griffith had, in all, but 28 months of formal schooling. He worked on the farm until he was 18 and then became a blacksmith's helper, but finally went to Temple and Buchanan, Ga., and then to Alabama, where he began first as a railroad worker and then the driver of street car No. 9 in Birmingham.

As a child he was a bashful youngster and longed to get over his timidity and to be able to get up before people and talk. Therefore he decided early in life that he wanted to be a lawyer though he never entered a courtroom until he was almost grown. When he had amassed what to him was a fortune of $200 he put behind him his prospects as a street car man and went back to Buchanan, where he studied law under Judge Price Edwards. He was admitted to the bar on February 3, 1891.

With this ambition realized he later became solicitor of the Tallapoosa circuit and served four years, until 1923. Prior to that time he had served as representative in the state assembly from Haralson county in 1898 and 1899 and as state senator from the 28th senatorial district in 1909 and 1910.

Judge Samuel H. Sibley, then district judge of the northern federal district of Georgia, appointed Judge Griffith as United States commissioner on April 2, 1928. Judge E. Marvin Underwood reappointed him on April 1, last.

Judge Griffith was married March 13, 1895, to Miss Sallie D. Harris and they have six children, three boys and three girls. They have five grandchildren.

Friends at the federal building Wednesday had drafted a letter of congratulation which was signed by his associates and well-wishers. The letter, which will be presented to him today, carries the names of the two judges who appointed him and a judge of the circuit court of appeals, in addition to the signatures of his many other friends in the building.

Chinese Group Raps Lytton Commission

SHANGHAI, Oct. 5.—(P)—Sharp condemnation of the Lytton report to the League of Nations proposing a solution of the problems of Manchuria was expressed today in a telegram to the national government by groups of Chinese businessmen, students and social workers, men and women.

They charged the report was an "ultimatum for international control of Manchuria" and urged the government to take independent action to recover the territory.

Accusing the government of lacking a definite foreign policy, they recommended seeking friendly relations with Russia on the continent and Great Britain and the United States on the Pacific ocean.

LIGHTHOUSE SERVICE TO SPEND $1,045,671

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—(P)—Secretary Chapin announced today that the commerce department planned immediate expenditure by the lighthouse service of $1,045,671 on 29 construction projects including a lighthouse tender and other aids to navigation.

Imperial Turkish Era Revived at Marriage

HADEM, Turkey, Oct. 5.—(P)—This is the tale of the wedding of Gulistan Hanim and of Falk Bey, grandson of the founder of Hadem. Three thousand guests assembled for the banquet.

Six hundred horsemen escorted the comely bride to her husband's home, and 2,400 hoofs clattered the processionary march.

One thousand sheep were sacrificed, roasted on spits, and eaten—a sheep to each three guests.

There was "pilav," the national dish, flavored (as is the custom at weddings) with saffron worth its weight in gold; and 900 pounds of rice went into its making.

For four days and four nights Hadem lived in its imperial past.

BRITAIN AND IRELAND TO STUDY OWN ISSUES

LONDON, Oct. 5.—(P)—England and the Irish Free State decided today to make the issue of unpaid Irish land annuities a matter for negotiation between the two governments.

President Eamon De Valera, of the Free State, and J. H. Thomas, British secretary for dominions, issued a joint statement after having conferred with other members of the British cabinet.

"We have agreed," this statement said, "to adopt the suggestion that the question concerning Irish land annuities should be made the subject of negotiations between the two governments."

In the course of our conversations attention was called to the fact that the sums formerly paid to the United Kingdom were being withheld by the Irish Free State. It was agreed that the negotiations should cover these sums also and that the discussions be begun in London if possible on October 14.

YOUTH STUBS TOE AND L. S. U. FINDS BONE DEPOSIT

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 5.—(P)—Louisiana State University geologists found mastodon hunting today after a 12-year-old boy, in swimming in Bayou Manchac near here, stubbed his toe on a sharp object which bruised it severely.

Angered by the bruise, Justin Cooper, the swimmer, dove to discover what he had hit and came up with what Dr. H. V. Howe, Louisiana State University geologist, described as a mastodon's tooth. Howe said he believed a scientifically important deposit of prehistoric animal bones in the mud ooze of the bayou had been disclosed as a result of the incident.

Fragments dug up in the vicinity were described by university authorities as odds and ends of a mastodon's skeleton, including a knee joint 13 inches thick, numerous molar teeth three inches across and four inches long with high serrated grinding surfaces, the tip of a broken tusk and an apparent section of jaw bone.

Large Cotton Crops Face Tax in Alabama

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Oct. 5.—(P)—The committee on agriculture of the house of the Alabama legislature today voted a favorable report for the Goode bill which would place a tax on cotton grown on more than 30 per cent of the acreage in cultivation.

The action came after J. E. McDonald, commissioner of agriculture of Texas, had appeared before the committee and declared "We need you to help Texas, and if you help Texas, you are helping Alabama." He said except for a few technicalities, the bill was similar to the Texas statute.

The bill provides for a tax of three cents a pound on lint cotton and one cent a pound on cottonseed, but exempts cotton grown on 30 per cent of an owner's land under cultivation. The act would apply to crops of 1933-34-35.

In introducing the bill yesterday, Representative R. J. Goode, of Wilcox, who is a member of the state board of agriculture, said Alabama and Georgia were the only two states which had not passed acreage control bills during the year.

MRS. KAISER SUES FOR ESTATE SHARE

Widow of Jeweler Seeks Court Intervention
Against Executors.

Mrs. Ruth B. Kaiser, widow of Nat Kaiser, Atlanta jeweler, Wednesday filed two actions in Fulton superior court to halt alleged mismanagement of the $500,000 estate left by her husband.

A bill in equity is directed against the executors and certain beneficiaries of the estate, and a complaint is directed against two of the directors of the Kaiser Invest Company, which is part of the estate.

Judge G. H. Howard, who heard the proceedings, set the hearing date for December 10.

In one action Mrs. Kaiser is seeking immediate payment of her share of the estate from the executors who are holding it in trust. She demands that the executors pay her $25,000 which she says is being withheld, and asks that all receipts from the estate be distributed.

Her second action is against the directors of the Kaiser Invest Company, which she says is being withheld, and asks that all receipts from the estate be distributed.

Old Boat Burned.

In Good Times and Bad —Your Service Improves

Some of our customers have commented favorably upon the fact that telephone service is better than ever, despite the depression, and that their telephone friends seem as anxious as ever to satisfy the individual needs of subscribers.

That the increased quantity and quality of the service has not been accompanied by a greater cost to the user is because of economies effected by new inventions and practices which have been passed on to the telephone using public in the form of more and better service.

This is gratifying, but quite natural when one considers that service comes first with telephone people and that they regard it as a serious obligation to serve the needs of the public efficiently, twenty-four hours a day, in good times and bad times.

During the past ten years the number of telephones in practically every community has doubled, and in some instances trebled. With this growth the service has become more complex but there has been a constant improvement due to scientific inventions, new methods and practices and a more skilled and experienced personnel. The value of the service has grown to the extent that it is regarded by many as the cheapest form of service that can be bought.

Although your telephone company has suffered a serious loss in revenue, there are still many more telephones in service than there were five years ago and the cost, compared with the value, scope and quality of the service is much less than it ever has been.

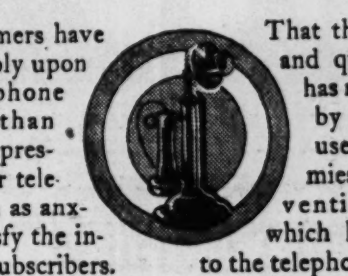

Telephone people have faced the depression cheerfully. They have accepted shorter hours in order that the work might be spread among as many as possible and with a determination to fulfill their obligation to render the best possible service at the lowest possible cost consistent with financial safety.

How many English Words can you spell with the letters in this Lucky Star?

Don't skip or jump any spaces, just move one space at a time, from any letter to any adjacent or touching letters in any direction. Simple, isn't it?

You have never played a more fascinating game; it's simple too, you don't even need a dictionary. We will furnish you FREE with one copy of the Official Lucky Star Word List, which contains all the words to be found from the star. Words not found in the list will not count.

This is truly a game for the whole family. The most fun you have ever had. Here is a game that yields big cash rewards for play.

Start Now!

Don't put it off. Mail in the coupon now for your free copy of the word list, get started—think of all the things you could do with $1,500 and if you are prompt you may win the new Chevrolet in addition to the first prize. You have just as good a chance as everybody else, there are no experts to compete against you. This is the first time the Lucky Star game has ever been offered in the South.

Read These Instructions Carefully

Form as many words as possible from the letters in the star. Start with any letter and move one square at a time, as many times as desired, to any adjacent or contiguous letters IN ANY DIRECTION; that is, upward, downward, sideways, and/or diagonally. (A letter is adjacent or contiguous to another when the spaces occupied touch each other either on the sides or at the corners. S-32 is adjacent or contiguous to S-20, T-21, I-22, T-33, E-43, P-42, and A-41. However, it is not adjacent to E-31, because it is separated from the letter by a blank space.) Do not skip or jump any letters or spaces. For example, starting in with S-32, we can form the following simple words and many others:

- | | | |
|----------------------------------|--------|-------|
| (a) S-32, T-21, A-12, T-21, E-11 | spells | STATE |
| (b) S-32, I-22, T-21, E-11 | spells | SITE |
| (c) S-32, T-33, E-43, E-51, R-44 | spells | STEER |
| (d) S-32, E-43, A-34, T-33 | spells | SEAT |
| (e) S-32, P-42, I-50, R-44, E-43 | spells | SPIRE |
| (f) S-32, A-41, P-40 | spells | SAP |

As you will observe in example (a) above, the same letter may be used more than once in a word, but do not double any letter. In example (c) above, we have used two E's, E-43 and E-51, to make the word STEER, because at this place in the star we have two adjacent squares, each containing the letter E. But we cannot start with S-32 and make the word STEEP by doubling up E-43, thereby using the same space twice in succession in the same word. When you have formed all the words you can starting with any given letter in the star, then start with another letter, and so forth, and you will be surprised how easy it is, and what fun.

THE RULES

OPERATION UNDERGONE BY LILYAN TASHMAN

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—(AP)—Lilyan Tashman, screen actress, underwent an emergency operation for appendicitis today at Harbor Sanatorium. Surgeons found it necessary to administer oxygen to revive the actress after the anesthetic.

She was reported as "resting" as easily as could be expected and in no imminent danger.

BANK IN TENNESSEE IS ROBBED OF $2,000

SURGOINSVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 5. (AP)—Two masked bandits today robbed the Holston Valley Bank of Surgoinsville, of approximately $2,000 after covering Paul Bean, assistant cashier, with guns and forcing him to open the vault.

They ran from the bank, jumped into an automobile and sped toward Rogersville.

Permanent Civic Players Open At Erlanger on Monday, Oct. 24

With more than 600 subscribers already secured for the Atlanta Permanent Civic Players, new stock organization whose dramatic home will be at the Erlanger theater, and with dozens of new subscribers being enrolled daily at the office at 601 Chamber of Commerce building, as well as at the theater, it was announced Tuesday that the opening performance by the new company probably will be "Death Takes a Holiday," on Monday, October 24. At that time the Erlanger will again become the home of legitimate drama in Atlanta with an organization that is expected to remain active all the year round, with productions every week except when important road show attractions are occupying the house.

The acting personnel of the new company will leave New York for Atlanta on Friday, October 14, reaching here the following Monday, Raymond Edwards, the producer, is expected here within the next few days. He has written Manager Haase, of the Erlanger, that he has completed signing the players he needs and that Atlanta is assured of a producing organization superior to anything the city has enjoyed in the past.

Mr. Edwards, who has spared no expense in securing his company, has engaged two pairs of leads, two women and two men, instead of the customary one pair in other stock organizations. He believes that leads suitable for light comedy roles should not be called upon to portray emotional parts, and vice versa, hence the signing of two leading ladies and two leading men.

While the personnel of the entire company was not given in Mr. Edwards' wire, he stated that he had secured Doris Packer for the ingenue lead. Miss Packer refused offers to play the Helen Hayes part in a revival of "Good Fairy" in New York, in order to accept the Atlanta engagement. She is an actress with a wide range of ability and a remarkable background. She is a graduate of the University of California, where she majored in dramatics and played leads in their famous annual productions of Greek drama. She is a member of the Delta Gamma society. She has played leads in many professional productions since and has also been leading lady in many civic production companies.

Frederic Tozer, featured player in many Broadway productions, including "Stepping Stones," "Betty Be Careful," "Journey's End" and "Blue Monday," will be one of the two leading men in the Atlanta company. He has had an unusual stage career, starting as premier pantomime with the Russian ballet in New York and later appearing with the Marion Morgan dancers in musical comedy, the Broadway dramatic field and stock. He is considered one of the finest of the younger group of leads now available.

The production for the opening on October 24 has not yet been definitely decided. It will be selected before the company reaches Atlanta and will be chosen from a list of a dozen of the latest and most successful Broadway productions, published in The Constitution a week ago.

Subscribing memberships to the civic organization may be secured by sending check for $3.00 to Roy LeCraw, president of the Chamber of Commerce, who is acting as trustee for the subscribers. Each membership entitles the holder to ten seats during the first ten weeks of the season, either one seat a week or any way the holder may desire. The price includes the government tax. Subscribers have first choice of seats before the public sale for individual performances begins at regular prices.

Mr. LeCraw, as trustee, holds all money for the subscribers and turns it over to the organization only as the plays are produced. If for any reason a production is not given, the pro rata amount of the subscription will be returned to the subscriber.

POULTRY ASSOCIATION DELEGATES VISIT FAIR

Despite inclement weather, delegates here for the fifty-seventh annual convention of the American Poultry Association spent Wednesday afternoon sight-seeing and attending the Southeastern fair and preparing for another business session at the Piedmont hotel today when nationally prominent fanciers and judges will make reports and speeches.

The convention, which opened Tuesday to continue through Friday, recessed at 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon following the morning business session. At 3:30 o'clock E. C. Branch, nationally known A. P. A. judge, conducted an educational program, using live birds in the fair's poultry building for demonstration. At 4:30 o'clock an old-fashioned Georgia chicken barbecue, including chicken Brunswick stew, was served the delegates.

The convention will return to strict business at 9:30 o'clock this morning and this afternoon William F. Kirkpatrick will conduct an educational program. Speakers will include Dr. E. P. Kaupp, of Spartanburg, S. C.; A. F. Gannon, of the Georgia State College of Agriculture; Clyde Ingram, of Louisiana State University; George Robertson, of Ottawa, Canada; Harvey C. Wood, of Chicago.

At 8 o'clock tonight a special "surprise" entertainment will be given in the convention hall of the Piedmont. Friday will bring the convention to a close with a full day's session and the installation of officers.

While the convention has been in progress the visiting wives of the delegates have been entertained at a number of bridge parties, luncheons, theater parties and auto trips.

The American Poultry Association is the largest group of poultry experts in the world and the second largest of all the many live stock organizations, according to H. A. Nourse, of St. Paul, Minn., president.

Total of $123,575.42 Spent by Candidates

The cost of running for public office in Georgia has come down along with other prices.

The office of Comptroller General W. B. Harrison reported Wednesday that campaign expense accounts of all candidates for state-wide office in the recent primary totaled $123,575.42.

Two years ago candidates for the same list of offices spent $134,331.47. The total for 1932 does not include expenses of Peter S. Twitty, commissioner of game and fish, who announced for governor but who withdrew before the ballots were printed. He said he spent less than $750, including his $250 entry fee.

Candidates for the United States senate, as in 1930, spent more than other aspirants for office. Congressman Charles R. Crisp, of Americus, defeated by Governor Richard B. Russell Jr. for that nomination, reported campaign expenses of $16,251.91 to lead the list, while Governor Russell listed expenditures of $12,589.11.

In the senatorial campaign two years ago John M. Slaton reported expenses of $55,820.33 for his unsuccessful effort to win the seat held by William J. Harris. Senator Harris at that time reported campaign expenses of $9,265.66.

INCREASE IN BUSINESS SEEN BY REO OFFICIAL

Vice President F. N. Morgan Pauses Here, Tells of Substantial Improvement.

Substantial improvements in virtually all basic industrial conditions were described Wednesday by F. N. Morgan, vice president, in charge of all United States branches of the Reo Motor Car Company, who stopped in Atlanta briefly en route back to Lansing, Mich., his headquarters. Mr. Morgan has visited more than three-fourths of the United States on a tour of contacting business leaders in virtually every field.

"I have noted very substantial increases in business in every section I have visited so far," he said Wednesday. "This is particularly true in the cotton belt of the south. I have just come from Dallas, Texas, where businessmen and farmers are talking no longer in gloomy terms, but in terms of optimism and confidence—something I have not hitherto encountered."

Mr. Morgan added that this is his second "swing" in the southern territory since last spring, and as an instance of still further improvement he pointed to a previous visit made in New England in June, at which time, he said, cotton textile mills were virtually at a standstill. Two months later, in August, he said, he visited New England and found all such mills in full operation and with 27,000 persons having been put to work.

"So far as Reo Motor Car Company is concerned," he added, "this company has recorded two successive plus months, and in the east our business has more than doubled since the early part of the year. We are looking forward to a great increase."

BURGLARY 'BUSINESS' UNCOVERED BY POLICE

Employment of a regular "staff" of burglars at so much per week and with each burglar given a regular beat is the latest racket to be uncovered in Atlanta, according to detectives who Wednesday caused at least one $10-a-week burglar to lose his job when they arrested him on a downtown corner in possession of clothing alleged to have been stolen from a dry-cleaning firm.

Floyd Searcy, negro, the arrestee in the case, told police he and other negroes were hired by "the boss." Further questioning of Searcy brought about a raid on a house on Magnolia street and the arrest of Ed West, another negro. Searcy pointed his finger at West as "the boss." West and his wife denied the allegation, but officers found too many clothes in West's home. All three are held for investigation.

ATLANTA, GA., OCT. 6, 1932.

BARKLEY ARRAYS MISRULE.

In his speech at Macon Tuesday night before a gathering of democratic leaders from every section of Georgia, Senator Barkley lived up to his reputation as an able thinker and deep student of governmental affairs.

He lays the blame for the depression which the country has been suffering to republican policies and misrule—and proves his case with incontrovertible facts and figures.

The economic collapse, he declares, "was produced and from time to time aggravated by the course pursued by the inept and incompetent leadership of the republican party in the United States, the chief of whom has been for the last four years the president of the United States."

But, Senator Barkley points out, President Hoover is far from being entirely to blame for the economic debacle, citing that the Harding administration "had scarcely been sworn into office when it began the exploitation of the people," and that under the Coolidge regime "unemployment increased and agriculture sunk steadily and surely into economic depths never before known in the United States."

While the prosperity of the nation was thus being dynamited by republican maladministration the people were further burdened by the steady increase in governmental expenses. From $3,900,000,000 in 1922 the cost of the federal government to the taxpayers of the country increased until by the end of this year it will have passed $5,000,000,000—a far greater sum than ever before in the history of the country in time of peace.

In attacking the "stabilization" policy of the farm board, Senator Barkley points out that when the board was created cotton was selling at 15 to 20 cents per pound and wheat at $1.25, but that under the misguided activities of the board wheat went to 20 cents and cotton to 4 and 5 cents.

The net result of this republican farm rescue effort was to spend $250,000,000 of tax money and to cost the farmers billions of dollars of revenue; an added result was the abandonment in six years of 682,000 farms.

Chief blame for the depression is placed by Senator Barkley on the inequitable Hawley-Smoot tariff act. He points out that despite the fact that the tariff was not stressed as a chief issue during the 1928 campaign, "Mr. Hoover called congress in special session and his first recommendation was that the tariff be increased."

He terms the Hawley-Smoot bill "a monstrous fraud put over on the American people, conceived, framed and delivered by the most corrupt lobby that ever assembled in ours or any other country of the world."

Praising the democratic platform as the "most definite and constructive program of principles that has been adopted by any political party in 50 years," Senator Barkley prophesies that it will chart a new course for the American people through the "turbulent sea of disaster and distress into a safer and happier harbor."

The splendid gathering of Georgia democrats and the ovation given to Senator Barkley were in keeping with the spirit of his outstanding address. Undoubtedly it will go far towards accomplishing the purpose for which the meeting was arranged—the arousing of such intense interest among the democratic voters of the state that the vote in the presidential election in Georgia this year will be the largest ever cast in a similar election in the state.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

Paganization Process.

Mass desertions from the churches are taking place in Germany. Both the Catholics and the Lutherans are alarmed. Of course, both socialism and communism are agnostic in that direction also. Both Lutheran and Catholic churches are aware that some step must be taken to guide the nation along paths that lead away from mere hero worshiping or the sun cults of the ancient Teutons, which are the only positive substitute offered for those who desert the established churches.

This week, so dignified a journal as the Frankfurter Zeitung quoted from the Katholische Augsburgische Post the following hymn to Hitler, which represents the frenzied feeling that any personality with glowing ideals is able to inspire in those without a firm basis of religion:

"Adolf Hitler, which art our leader,
Foes tremble at thy name,
Thy third empire come!
Thy will be done on earth,
Let us hear thy voice daily,
And command us through thy leaders
Whom we will obey even at sacrifice
Of our own life.
This do we vow,
Hail Hitler!"

It is after such collective prayers as this, preferable after all to the obnoxious hymn type, such as "When Jewish gore from sword-blades drips," that political murders are committed.

Fashion Revolution Coming.
Jean Patou, the famous dress designer, has completely revolutionized the outline of women's dress to such an extent that it is to say the least, a new fashion. The figure from the shoulders to the hem of the skirt, Patou has brought the belt to the hips as it was placed on the waist. He has deliberately abandoned what he helped to create, the higher waistline.

Patou's new line, the Paris journals, mediaeval brown and mediaeval lines are reintroduced. Back we go to the days of Diana of Poitiers and Madame de Mazarin. Except we men, of course. We will continue to look as ridiculous as ever. For really can you think of more inconvenient things than stiff collars, vests and cravats? A harness would be more comfortable than such a strait-jacket.

Georgia Heroes Of the World War

By Sergeant L. E. Jaekel

ARLIE C. OPPENHEIM, (Army Serial No. 58091), Corporal, Company I, 28th Infantry, 1st Division, American Expeditionary Force, awarded the Croix de Guerre with palms for heroic gallantry in action with the enemy July 18, 1918, near Soissons, France.

During the attack on this date, Corporal Oppenheim assisted his platoon commander in pushing forward the attack against strong enemy resistance. Later, when the advance of his platoon was halted by machine gun fire, he, with three others, advanced ahead of his lines and silenced the enemy machine gun.

Due to his gallantry, his organization was enabled to continue the advance. Later, in the engagement, he was wounded by a particularly vicious machine gun, but he was seriously wounded and evacuated to the hospital.

While declaring that "a great national victory has been achieved against depressive economic forces," the president omits to explain why nothing was done to that end during nearly three years of the worst depression in the history of the nation—years which were featured by one pronouncement after another from the White House, taking the position either that there was no real depression or that the "worst was over."

His apologetic excuse for the boot-grabbing Hawley-Smoot tariff act is not likely to overcome the deep-rooted belief of the country that to this inequitable act can be attributed not only the blame for bringing on and intensifying the depression, but for its having dragged out for a longer period than any other similar economic disturbance in the history of the country.

His proposal to raise farm tariffs in the face of the disastrous effects of the Hawley-Smoot bill is not calculated to revive republican enthusiasm among the farmers of the country. American farmers are not so dull as to believe that conditions can be made better by adding to the bills which have brought them to their present unfortunate situation.

President Hoover's address is more of an apology than a defense of his administration. He is more definite in his proposals than he has been in any of his statements, or his spokesmen have been, but he cannot expect to justify the lack of accomplishment of his administration while clinging to, and defending, its tariff enactments, the farm board and the other activities which have been chiefly instrumental in placing the country in its present plight.

The president's address is as weak and meaningless in contrast to the incisive, straight-from-the-shoulder speeches of Roosevelt as is the straddling, indefinite republican platform adopted by the democrats. Certainly, in view of the tremendous popular resentment against the republican misrule of the past 12 years, it fails miserably in its purpose to inspire revived hope for victory by his party.

The bee who lit, and "sat down," on the nose of Senator Fletcher, is entitled, so to say, to hand down to his descendants the fact that he took a punch at an august senatorial proboscis and, presumably, got away with it.

COMMUNISTS, DRY GIVEN BALLOT PLACE
TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Oct. 5.—(AP)—The communist party, with a ticket of presidential electors and a prohibition party, with a ticket of denial electors and a candidate for state treasurer, were given places on the general election ballot in Florida today.

What Value Has an Insomnia Cure If You Must Remain Awake To Take It?

By Robert Quillen

Fear is the penalty paid by those who value something too highly. One afternoon in the early fall an old negro woman sat alone in her cabin with her back to the open door and stared at the dying embers of an open-hearth fire. The sound of a step on the porch announced the presence of an unexpected visitor, but she did not start or move.

"Who dah?" she asked in a tone of polite interest. "She felt no concern, for a life free of alarms had given her the sense of security that is the recompense of the very poor who have nothing to lose."

She was free of fears, for her small possessions would not have tempted the meanest thief and her span of life was so nearly finished that the remainder was scarcely worth taking or saving.

More fortunate people who covet a similar sense of security and freedom from anxiety may achieve their desire simply by developing a proper sense of values.

People live in dread of death because they value life too much. Man rightly values his life above all other possessions, but to preserve it by becoming a slave to anxiety or terror is to pay a price greater than its worth.

Those who live always in dread of material loss are tricked by a false standard of values. Property has value only because it gives security. When possession of it brings a sense of insecurity, anxiety and dread, exaggeration of its value has destroyed the only value it had.

The purpose of all civilization and all learning and all industry is to increase human happiness by making life more secure, more pleasant and more enjoyable. No other goal could justify such unremitting and stupendous effort.

The blessings of civilization are a means to an end, not an end in themselves. The rich man is less fortunate than the poor one if he must lie awake at night in dread of thieves.

Knowledge of disease germs is a curse if it makes life a continuous and terrified struggle to escape germs.

Peace of mind and a feeling of security are the chief rewards of all our striving. If these are destroyed by our ignorance of values, civilization loses its meaning and we become less fortunate than the contented savage.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Oct. 5.—Whimsicality has motion pictures by the ears. Leading men and leading women exchange nonsensicalities with one another.

Two pictures have gone whimsical recently. Mr. Deeds, starring George Raft, and McCreck's first starring vehicle, "Free, White and Twenty-one," had some "well, stranger, what are you doing?" the old water head to take. I understand it will be removed and the real hit of the picture, Bob Benciner, will be allowed to have what applause is coming to him by reason of more sequences.

More than whimsicality is "wrong" with Tallulah Bankhead's latest, "Tallulah," changed to "Fifteen." It is a movie which runs the gamut of depression comedy. The scale is broad but not the comedy is broad. It is a movie which has been riding on its own heroic going forth into the streets, when her truck-driver husband is ill, to ensnare men.

Of course it was showing: When the reviewer mentions pictures for several years in Hollywood you come to the conclusion that producers cannot without heartaches over your miseries and casualties; without summoning every avenue of skillful assistance in respect of party or view, without using every ounce of his strength and straining his every nerve to protect and help, without using every possible agency of democracy that would bring aid, without putting aside personal ambition and humbling his pride of opinion if that would serve—then I say to you that such statements are deliberate intolerable falsehoods.

Fort Wayne was the first of a series of several hundred pictures that he was to make. He was to make a way toward Indiana and Ohio toward the national capital where he will arrive tomorrow morning.

The train at Chicago to accompany the president and Mrs. Hoover through the Hoosier state.

One of the president's secretaries told me that after the travel today the chief executive was "ticked to death" at the reception he received in the farm belt yesterday in which he was greeted by a crowd of farmers, some of whom were holding up a 10-year-old child and that though not insane he is not sane but merely what is known as the "twilight zone."

His State Witnesses.
The state offered rebuttal witnesses and then Curtis was led to the witness stand by an alienist. The preceding day he declared that he is a dope addict and that he had entered into a suicide pact with the Bryant girl. He seemed to be in a state of confusion.

Letters were introduced by the state attempting to show that he killed his sweetheart in a fit of jealousy. It was a few seconds later that Curtis asked if he had killed a girl. He declared that he did not know one of the witnesses who had testified against him, denied writing any letters, and declared that he was not a dope addict. He said he had "traded it out with him." Curtis is a barber married and the father of three children.

He said today that he did not kill Annette Bryant. She did herself. If she goes crazy enough over him to kill herself I'm not to blame for it. God knows I can't help it. He said he was a dope addict and that he was only for my wife and three children that I do care. All I ask, gentlemen, is justice. Thank you, and he descended from the stand.

No Manslaughter Charge.
In their arguments before the jury, James R. Venable and R. E. Church, attorneys for the defense, stressed the findings of the alienist. In his argument, Assistant Solicitor John Hudson demanded the death penalty, declaring that Curtis was "mentally deficient, though possibly mentally deficient, knew better to kill."

Judge Hutcheson charged the jury on what constitutes insanity, and declared that the state was to prove whether Curtis knew the difference between right and wrong if it was thought that he killed the girl. He said that the jury might take his own statement as evidence, but the evidence introduced by the state, in which he declared that the girl killed herself.

He charged the jury as to manslaughter but told the jury that they could make one of three verdicts, either guilty, carrying the death penalty; guilty with a recommendation to mercy of the court, carrying life imprisonment; or not guilty.

"PERSONAL" ATTACK SCORED BY HOOVER
tive's first since he left Des Moines last night where he said a national victory had been achieved over economic difficulties and declared that enactment of the "democratic program" would "end hope of recovery."

Without naming the "opponents" whom he referred to, the president told his Fort Wayne audience: "On this journey, however, I have received a multitude of reports as to the widespread personal misrepresentations which have been promulgated in the mid-west in the past few weeks. I regret that the character of these personalities necessitates a direct word from me."

"I shall say now the only harsh word that I have uttered in public office I hope it will be the last I shall have to say."

"When you are told that the president of the United States, who by the most sacred trust of our nation is the president of all the people, a man of your own blood and upbringing, has sat in the White House for the last three years of your misfortune without troubling to know your burdens, had not yet taken up the question of inviting Smith to speak for him in his campaign for the presidency.

SMITH EXPECTED TO MOUNT STUMP TO AID ROOSEVELT

At democratic national headquarters there were no announcements about a Smith speaking engagement, either tentative or definite.

Various national party leaders, however, said they anticipated Roosevelt might ask Smith to do some stump speaking in Massachusetts.

Democrats in Massachusetts have expressed a desire for the "Happy Warrior," whom they supported at Chicago in the big race in 1928.

New York democrats, recalling that Calvin Coolidge will speak in Madison Square Garden next Tuesday, were talking of the possibility of getting Smith as the headline for their rally in the vast "Garden."

Some of the speakers are also eager for the former governor to speak in their state.

"Personal" Chat.
Smith and James A. Farley, Roosevelt's campaign manager, returned from Albany on the same train. They said, regarding a chat they had had, that it was "merely passing the time."

As they separated at the station, Farley said: "I was very happy to see former Governor Smith. He is a prominent position in bringing about the nomination of his great friend, Mr. Lehman."

Smith, wearing his famous brown derby, declared when asked for a statement: "It's all in the papers."

Curry Under Fire.
Out of the tangled confusion resulting from Tammany's unsuccessful fight to block Lehman's nomination came these reports, which were neither definite nor certain.

1. That a definite move was under way within Tammany ranks to replace as leader John F. Curry, who, in private conferences, led the fight against Lehman's nomination.

2. That Smith was being considered by some leaders as possible organization candidate for mayor, if an election were held by the turn of appeals in the decision to be handed down.

3. That Joseph V. McKee, Walker's successor and a non-Tammany democrat, is growing in strength as a possible fusion candidate, if not nominated by the democrats.

Smith is expected to appear tomorrow night in Madison Square Garden, to which there will be 32,075 delegates, will bring the only definite denial of confirmation of the last two reports.

As to the first, Smith, it was learned authoritatively tonight, was definitely under no such consideration as United States senator if he were to withdraw his support of Lehman.

His answer was two-fold: That he was for Lehman "in spite of everything," and that he was "not a candidate for any public office at present."

Saying he would not attend tomorrow night's mayoralty convention, Mayor LaGuardia thoughtfully pointed out the legality of the convention would be questioned by court action.

He did not say, however, that he would not attend such action to adjudicate the question.

The mayor said it was his belief that the law holds it necessary that steps be taken to fill his office with a man who will carry on the resignation of James J. Walker.

ROOSEVELT BUSY AGAIN WITH AFFAIRS OF STATE
ALBANY, Oct. 5.—(AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt, president-elect, today the job of clearing his desk of work that piled up while he was on his western campaign trip.

Long hours were spent with various state officials over budget matters filled his morning and early afternoon. Later there was a press conference.

He said he had not yet considered whether Alfred E. Smith would be asked to speak for him during his official visit to New York.

Smith clasped hands in friendly fashion before almost 10,000 persons last night in the crowded state armory at Albany.

First initial address today was the election of the national democratic ticket in a speech to the delegates to the state convention.

He said he probably would leave Friday for his home at Hyde Park to spend the week-end and that the final decision of the next campaign itinerary would be decided until early next week.

Proud and happy, in his own words, at having been chosen democratic candidate for governor of New York, Lieutenant Governor Herbert H. Lehman prepared tonight for a conference and dinner with New York state leaders at New York.

He told newspapermen today he expected to make a non-partisan speech on the subject of the election of the national democratic ticket in a speech to the delegates to the state convention.

"I am confident," he said, "that Governor Roosevelt will carry the state by a substantial margin."

"Does this confidence apply also to your own candidacy?" a newspaperman asked him.

"Oh, yes, absolutely," Mr. Lehman replied.

COLORADO SENATOR SAYS CITIZENS NOT DUTIFUL
GRAND JUNCTION, Colo., Oct. 5.—(AP)—U. S. Senator Walter Walker, democrat, Colorado, took issue today with a statement by Senator Key Pittman, democrat, Nevada, in Washington that there were only three western states doubtful for the democrats and Colorado was one of them.

"It is hard to understand where Senator Pittman got his information," Senator Walker said. "Even many well informed republicans concede Colorado to Roosevelt."

Walker predicted that Roosevelt will carry Colorado by not less than 50-00 majority.

FRAZIER WILL SUPPORT LEHMAN
WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—(AP)—Senator Frazier, democrat, North Dakota, who recently announced he would not support President Hoover for re-election, today declared he would support Governor Roosevelt.

"I think President Hoover's Des Moines speech was mighty well worded," he said, "and I don't see how it could be better."

"I don't agree with some statements but the speech was well worded," he said, "and I don't see how it could be better."

Frazier, who recently returned from the west, said "there has been a change of sentiment toward the president in the middle west due in part to disappointment in Governor Roosevelt and also due to the conclusion that President Hoover is not to blame for everything."

MONTGOMERY CITIZENS HAIL LEHMAN VICTORY
MONTGOMERY, Ala., Oct. 5.—(AP)—Montgomery citizens today hailed the victory of Governor Lehman, nominated for governor of New York, wired him congratulations today.

The Lehman adopted Montgomery as "home" more than 80 years ago and the nominee's father, Mayer Lehman, was engaged in the cotton business here for a number of years.

He greatly rejoiced in the nomination, being particularly interested because Montgomery was the former home of his parents. Leopold Strauss, prominent Alabama political figure and businessman, wired Mr. Lehman: "Selection of Governor Lehman means that you will be the next governor. Very best wishes for your success."

JIMMY WALKER LAUDS SELECTION OF LEHMAN
ABOARD S. S. EUROPA AT SEA, Oct. 5.—(AP)—Selection of Lieutenant Governor Herbert H. Lehman as the democratic candidate for the New York governorship was described as a splendid "choice" by James J. Walker, former New York mayor, when he appeared on deck today.

EVERY WESTERN STATE SEEN FOR ROOSEVELT
NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 5.—(AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt will carry every state in the Mississippi river in the presidential election, the opinion of Senator Sam G. Bratton, who, with Senator Tom Connally compose the state committee on elections which is investigating the fraud in Louisiana's democratic primary.

"I have never seen opinion so enthusiastic in one direction before," Bratton said. "The Roosevelt trip through the west demonstrated that he had strengthened his position which was already strong. In my opinion he will carry every state west of the Mississippi."

Senator Connally was equally optimistic, asserting that Roosevelt's victory over President Hoover "will be overwhelming."

Bratton is from New Mexico, and Connally from Texas.

GARNER'S ANSWER TO CITIES PROMISES

able agricultural products are a sham and a pretense."

Representative Byrnes said: "It is often times it may be better possible to glorify over real facts as the president did but today the people because of their own suffering have knowledge of the truth which rhetoric and labored explanations cannot destroy."

He said Mr. Hoover made no mention of 5,000 banks "that have failed during his administration" and added that the president himself "played a part in falsely sustaining and prolonging" the stock market boom which Mr. Hoover said "had weakened our own economic structure."

Senator Swanson, of Virginia, said: "I think yesterday was a gala day for democracy. Instead of being injured by President Hoover's speech, democratic success was greatly strengthened by it."

He added that for political significance the Iowa speech was overshadowed by Hoover's reunion of Governor Roosevelt and former Governor Smith last night at Albany.

As to President Hoover's assertion that the Hawley-Smoot tariff act was not passed until nearly a year after the depression began, Garner said: "The fact is that the real depression found its inception from the moment Mr. Hoover affixed his signature to the indefensible bill. . . . In the course of a few months these (more than 40) nations, resentful over the 48 per cent jump in tariff rates, raised their tariff bars to shut out our trade. . . ."

Everyone, with the possible exception of the section hand and his visors, is aware now that the Hawley-Smoot tariff has bankrupted the farmer. . . ."

Behind the railing the statement that the president's ability to fulfill his pledges was open to question, Garner observed that "utmost respect is due" Mr. Roosevelt, president-elect, as a candidate "his acts of omission as well as commission are subjects for legitimate criticism."

He said he was only echoing the opinions of men and women in both parties and all walks of life.

"It is regrettable, yet true," he said, "that the section hand, the clerk, the little businessman, the farmer, the great executive, the railroad magnate and even the big financier have, regardless of position, reached the conclusion that the promise wearing Mr. Hoover's imprint have often been made either to be studiously disregarded or to be put off indefinitely."

The confidence of the millions who voted for Mr. Hoover in 1928, said Garner, "has been shamefully betrayed, and their hopes 'have been shattered and broken.'"

"Their faith in Hoover, the man," he went on, "has been dissipated and cannot be revived."

"Broken" cannot be explained away. They do not form even a flimsy foundation upon which to rear another structure or pledge calculated to bring back a president whose lack of fitness has been conclusively demonstrated—and demonstrated by the masses of the people."

He said the president, "like the famous Mr. Dooley, who 'marched them up the hill and marched them down again,' is battling everything he can and winning a victory every time he counter marches. . . ."

"He has not yet discerned the fact that lack of administrative initiative and lack of foresight, and adherence to obsolete policies here in the United States are the fundamental cause of the domestic as well as the world conditions."

SENATOR WATSON SEES SPEECH AS PARTY AD
INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 5.—(AP)—United States Senator James E. Watson declared here today that President Hoover's speech at Des Moines was "a party address" and a "new confidence through the republican ranks."

"The president thrust aside the curtain," he said, "and showed the American people a convincing view of what has been going on in the world, and especially here in America during the past three years," Senator Watson said.

VICE PRESIDENT CURTIS LINCOLN'S FARMER IS LOYAL
Vice President Charles W. Curtis today said the farmer was just like other people—loyal, patriotic and faithful to the government—and he "is not bitter."

"The farmers talk, but they don't act," he said, "and they are facing the prospect of a fair and unbiased. We will carry the country just as we did in 1928."

He spoke at a press conference soon after his arrival from Kansas City on the fourth week of a republican campaign tour.

SPEAKER GARNER ATTACKED IN REPUBLICAN STATEMENT
CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—(AP)—Republican campaign headquarters made public today a statement in which Senator Charles McNary, republican, charged "the failure of Speaker Garner to control his own followers in the last congress, with consequent delay in passing important legislation, is threatening the financial future of western farmers and ranchers."

"Because of delay in getting the reconstruction corporation machinery started," the statement said, "western stockmen are losing the prospect of having to sacrifice their young feeders unless funds are made available to carry the stock through the winter. Funds are being carried over to the spring but no relief measures delayed by the democratic house."

ATTEMPT AT CONCEALMENT IS CHARGED TO MILLS
WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—President Hoover's advisors are attempting to conceal the extent of the importance of the present situation, Alabama's senator, Hugo Black, declared yesterday replying to Secretary of the Treasury Mills' recent address at Los Angeles.

"The American people, in spite of Mr. Mills' attempt to give the great democratic tide a rolling on to success and Mr. Roosevelt, the man of vision, heart and courage, will be the president."

CHINESE CITY TAKEN BY 'COMMUNIST' BAND

Statement to Public

E. H. READ

"I will first endeavor to explain to the best of my ability just exactly the condition I was in before I commenced to take this wonderful Sargon treatment. I was always hale and hearty until about three years ago when I had an attack of influenza. This attack left me with numerous ailments from which I had never been able to recover. Ever since that time I have suffered from extreme nervousness, weakness, stomach trouble and constipation in their very worst forms. I absolutely had no ambition or endurance. I seemed tired all the time. The least little physical effort would bring on perspiration.

"I would get so weak I couldn't stand up at times without finding something to hold on to. I had no control over my nerves. At times I would be very melancholy and would feel I was losing all my former friends on account of being so irritable and unpleasant. In fact, I was losing all desire to live and enjoy life. "Thank goodness! I am all over that now, and am beginning to feel like my old self again. Since taking Sargon and Sargon Soft Mass Pills I have fully regained my strength and have gotten back to my normal weight. I am no longer nervous and incidentally I am sleeping more soundly, which has also helped considerably. "I do not care for publicity but I would feel very ungrateful if I did not let the public know what this wonderful new scientific treatment has done for me." The above statement was made by E. H. Read, well-known San Jose, Cal. citizen. Sargon may be obtained from Jacobs Pharmacy.—(adv.)

In both of these Georgia cities existing leases expire prior to July 1, 1934, and their selection was mandatory under provisions of the act.

The building at Cairo will cost $65,000 and the one at East Point, $60,000. With a few exceptions all of the 100 or more projects authorized today will have limits of cost of less than $100,000.

Among other cities allocated buildings were:

POSTMISTRESS HUMPHREYS NOT TOLD OF ALLOCATION

Mrs. A. R. Humphreys, postmistress of East Point, Wednesday night said she had received no late official information from Washington concerning the allocation under the Garner-Wagner relief appropriations bill for a new postoffice at East Point.

Postmistress Humphreys said her latest information had come from Congressman Robert Ramspeck, to the effect that approval of the East Point project was assured. The East Point office is rated as second-class, and handles approximately $25,000 postal business annually. The allocation calls for an expenditure of approximately $60,000 for a new postoffice.

MEXICO CHALLENGED BY PAPAL SPOKESMEN

Government Must Be Responsible for Future Events, He Says.

VATICAN CITY, Rome, Oct. 5.—(UP)—The Mexican government must stand responsible for future events in Mexico as a result of its expulsion of the Most Rev. Leopoldo Ruiz y Flores, the apostolic delegate, spokesmen for Vatican City said today.

President Abelardo Rodriguez and the Mexican congress have "rejected" an opportunity, offered by Pope Pius, to work out an understanding on the religious question, the spokesmen said. The Vatican City publication, Osservatore Romano, said that "while the papal encyclical was confined to a portrayal of the situation to Mexican Catholics, through statements of facts, and showing the Catholics which path to follow, the government uses the encyclical as a pretext to expel the apostolic delegate. This is an eloquent and unanswerable confirmation that the pope's motives were unbiased."

Team-of-four play is at last about to take its place where it rightly belongs in Atlanta. There is no more interesting form of duplicate. There is no form of duplicate where luck plays as small a part.

The Atlanta Bridge Club has already selected its first three teams to represent that club. These selections were made partly on the records of the players and partly on the team work of various pairs. The Cavendish Club has faced with the task of selecting teams for inter-club play and has decided to make the selection by competition.

To this end there will be two team-of-four tournaments for aspirants wishing to represent that club. The various teams can be organized at will. This allows those wishing to play on the same team the opportunity to gratify their wish. The first so-called elimination tournament will be held Saturday evening. Already about four teams have signified their intention to play. The tournament is open to as many of the club members as desire to play. Scores made Saturday evening will be carried forward and added to those made at the second session.

The team finishing first will be considered the first Cavendish team. The one finishing second, the second, and so on. The club announces, however, that any team finishing below another team has the right to challenge the higher team for its place after a period of two weeks. Should a team not be among the first three in the tournament and wish to get another shot, it has the perfect right to challenge the lower ranking team at the end of two weeks. Should it win it can then challenge the next higher team and so on until it gets to the top.

This so-called ladder tournament plan is very popular and should be found exceedingly interesting as it gives no team the right to keep its place without fighting at stated intervals for that place. It is built purely on merit and should please everyone. Besides this team-of-four tournament and the subsequent inter-club matches which it will produce, the Mayfair Club announces that it will run a weekly team-of-four tournament over a series of 10 weeks. The teams will carry over scores made in each tournament and at the finish the team having the greatest number of points will win a handsome trophy.

So much for the future and team-of-four competition. Now for some past history on the tournaments which have been played so far this week. On Monday evening the Mayfair Club held its second pair tournament of the season. No less than 28 players turned out for the event and some very spirited play resulted. The winners turned up in W. H. Edwards and Claude England, who finished with a score of 101 match points. Second place went to Joe David and Erskine Jones, with 97 points, and third place fell to Mrs. St. Elmo Massengale and Mrs. Paul Reid, with 84 1-2 points. The Howell system of match point scoring was used.

The thunder from this battle had hardly died on the autumn air when about the biggest gathering of bridge players this writer ever saw under one roof assembled Tuesday afternoon at the Brookhaven Country Club to play in the tournament sponsored by the Atlanta Woman's Golf Association.

The proceeds from this tournament were to go toward the entertainment of visiting golfers at the woman's state championship to be played here next week. Judging from the amount collected the visitors are going to be royally entertained.

There were two sections, one of 11 tables and one of 9. If your multiplier is not backwards you have seen that there were 80 players in the tournament. In addition to the tournament play there were countless tables of the side lines at which non-tournament players were enjoying an afternoon of bridge. All in all, it was a great party and went off very well.

The north-south top in section A was won by Mrs. W. H. Polard and Mrs. Stillwell Robinson, with 73 points. Second place went to Mrs. Robert Ingram and Mrs. J. W. Greenwall. The first place in the east-west division fell to Mrs. Gladys Peabody and Miss Peggy Porter, who scored the tremendous amount of 80 points out of a possible 110. Mrs. Claude Williamson and Mrs. J. M. Oliver were second, with 68 points.

First honors in the north-south division of section B went to Mrs. D. W. Everett and Mrs. L. R. Raglan, with 54 points. Mrs. W. H. Paxton and Mrs. C. A. Fuller were second, with 46 points. The east-west top was won by Mrs. Heibel Miller and Mrs. Joe M. Glass with 46 points, and one-half point behind them came Mrs. J. C. Read and Mrs. J. B. Kincaid.

Tuesday evening Mrs. Emma McDaniel's popular tournament, run at her studio on Juniper street, found seven tables in play. A new combination in the persons of Mrs. J. G. Russell and A. M. Dunn were crowned winners. Their 91 points proved enough by one point to nose out Mr. and Mrs. R. K. Gage. Third place went to Mrs. Harry Cannon and Bill Dickey, with 86 1-2 points.

Friends of Joe David are congratulating him on his winning the first prize in the Red Book competition for the most interesting hand of the month. As this honor carries with it no less than $250, Joe takes first rank as the richest bridge player in the city.

CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

BY ELY CULBERTSON,
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

Partnerships

The foundation of any good Bridge partnership is built of something more than a mere understanding of each other's bidding methods. Many theoretically ideal partnerships have turned out badly under the stress of tournament play because of temperamental incompatibility between the two players. You cannot make a winning combination out of two temperamental and excitable players any more than you can make an ideal combination out of two calm, stolid, unresponsive players. The ideal Bridge partner is an anchor or a Rock of Gibraltar as well as a creator. By creator I mean a man who makes situations, creates swings, and in other ways provides the action.

Regardless of the temperaments of the two players, the ideal partnership allows each player to take control of hands when the proper hand comes around for him. That is to say, the superlative pair cannot be one player continually making the decisions on all close hands, becoming the Declarer in every notrump, contract, or shutting out his partner from the bidding. There is very little sense in having one player play all the Dummies, even though he be the better player. It is the duty of each of these hands his hand is not the proper hand to be the Declarer. What does one profit if he picks up a trick on the play of a certain hand when he has lost 2 tricks by the fact that the Opening lead up to his hand has been 2 tricks worse for him than the Opening lead up to his partner's hand?

The ideal partnership is based on confidence. Have confidence in your partner's bids and have confidence in his plays. When he gives you a chance on your King, which definitely tells you to shift, you must shift unless there is some extraordinary reason for not doing so. If he doubles the opponents' declaration rather than passing the bid to you and letting you make the decision as to whether to double or overcall, believe in him and let his Double stand. Similarly, if he passes and makes the decision to you, telling you to take the action, do not fall down on him by passing, because, after all, his pass was made for you to take some action. If your partner is repeatedly telling you that his hand is fitted for a suit declaration and a suit declaration only, do not keep insisting on notrump even though you have a 4-3-3-3 hand yourself.

Do not take entire control of every defense. If your partner has seemingly decided on a certain line of defense, which defense calls for the play of a card which you had not intended playing, co-operate with him unless you have very strong reasons to know that his defense is wrong and your line of play will be the winning one. Believe in his high-card tournament. In this competition you can play with the same partner as many times as you wish. The scoring will be based on the order of finish. Ten places will be counted each time and the points scored in inversely as you finish. First place gets ten and tenth place gets one. Handsome trophies will be given to the winner and runner-up. Weekly trophies will also be given.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

BY CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Dear Miss Chatfield: For the first years of our married life we had to practice the strictest economy, then my husband changed his occupation and with my help we built up a respectable business and built our home near by. One child came to bless our home and this child is now in high school. We were an affectionate couple and we rarely quarreled. Two years ago my husband became very morose. He spent a large part of his time away from home and seldom asked me to go with him, which was quite unusual. Thinking he was not well I did more and more of the work and urged him to stay away from business as much as he could. Imagine my distress when I discovered that another woman was the cause of the trouble; a married woman with a husband and little children! When I asked him what he meant he said he loved me and our child and only us, and begged me to forgive and forget his indiscretion. This I did, for the years of our life together had been so happy and I felt so keenly the duty to our child to keep the home intact that any other course was unthinkable.

But sadder still, he is seeing this woman again, exchanging letters and telephone calls. I am sure her husband doesn't know of it. Nor does my husband's family who have always been very fond of me and I of them. What am I to do? Tell my husband that I am acquainted with his action, tell his family of his conduct or tell the woman's husband? I must act and act quickly.

ANXIOUS.

Answer: Up to the present time you have maintained such a dignified and commendable attitude toward this humiliating experience that it would be tragic indeed if you were betrayed into doing anything rash and meaningless to yourself. Yet I know there is a limit to human endurance. I know that the righteous indignation you feel boils up in your soul and threatens to overflow and put out the light of reason. Perhaps the best thing to keep in mind is the thing you have had in mind; namely, that to keep the home intact for the sake of your child is the most important item in the account. To do this you must keep your head.

It is terrifying to consider what havoc a conscienceless woman can work in her own family and in the family of the man with whom she consorts. She can put an end to the peace and happiness of dozens of people through her shameless efforts to try out her wiles and to prove herself that she is yet desirable. When she has accomplished her foul purpose what has she but the disrespect of the man with whom she has consorted and the contempt of all those that knew about her misconduct?

When an abused wife lacks delicacy and dignity she has the natural impulse to expose and punish such a woman at any cost. But a lady knows that by adopting any method to expose or punish her it is the lady who suffers most in the end. Vindictiveness always costs more than it comes to and it never is more expensive when it is practiced by an abused wife on an interloping woman.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Anthony, fifth earl of Drotwiche, had just become engaged to Violet Waddington, heiress of Waddington's of St. Sops. The discovery of Tony's secret had first been made by Lord Drotwiche's brother, the Hon. Fredie Chalk-Marshall, who had deduced as much when he saw Anthony kissing Violet in the rose garden of Langley End, the Drotwiche country seat in Worcestershire. Wanting to do a good turn, Fredie had sent a wire to Tobby Bridgman, who had had his annual row with his father and was trying to turn as honest penny as a gossip writer for the London Daily Express. The household at Langley End, which included Sir Herbert and Lady Lydia Bassinger, Anthony's aunt, got the news when the telephone to verify Tobby's report of the engagement. Lady Lydia had skillfully stage-managed the preliminaries. Violet informed her father, G. Waddington, of the St. Sops, he beamed but deploring Violet's lack of sentimentality. Violet, tall, slender and beautiful, was hard-bodied as a fashion plate and bluntly told her father that Anthony was supplying the title and she the money. Slingby, the butler, announced that Mrs. Price, who was his sister and had been Anthony's nurse, was coming to Langley End that afternoon. When Mrs. Price's son Syd arrived with her and a pretty girl who was a maid, he told Tony that his mother had one of her heart attacks and had taken about a flask of brandy. Tony said he would see her later and Slingby found her wandering about the house. NOW ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT VII.

"Nannie," said Tony, "I blush to say that I did lead her on. You must have brought me up very badly."

"I'm sure, me lord," said Mrs. Price, bridling, "I gave you all the love and care that any baby could wish."

"But too little of the back of the hairbrush. With what result? I acted a lie to this young lady. A lie, I tell you. A lie. My God!"

He covered his face with his hands. Polly laughed. Mrs. Price became severe.

"You've bin upsetting 'is lordship."

"No," said Tony. "I upset her. That's how we met."

"Well, it all looks very queer to me," said Mrs. Price austere, "and if you ask me if I like it I'll tell you frankly I don't."

She would have developed this theme, but at this moment the door opened, and Slingby burst in.

"Oh! Ere again! Didn't I tell you..."

He perceived Tony, and his manner lost its generous fire and became butlerlike. "I beg your pardon, m'lord," he said. "I was not aware that your lordship was present."

"Quite all right, Slingby."

"May I urge with the utmost en-phasis, m'lord, that it's no fault of mine that this woman keeps popping in here every two minutes like a rabbit into its hole?"

"It's quite all right. We were just having a cozy little chat."

"Very good, your lordship."

Tony turned to Polly.

"By the way," he said, "have we met? My name is Drotwiche—Lord."

Polly smiled her ready smile.

"Mine is Brown—Polly."

"How do you do, Miss Brown?"

"Pleased to meet you, Lord Drotwiche."

They shook hands. And, as they did so, Lady Lydia Bassinger came in, followed by Sir Herbert.

Lady Lydia stopped in the doorway. Mrs. Price was not one of her favorites, and the drawing room at the moment seemed to her a preliminary to rebuking what she considered the undue levity and familiarity of Miss Polly Brown. Ma Price had begun to swell forbiddingly, and she appeared to Lady Lydia to be occupying far too much cubic space for one in her position.

"Ah, Price," she said stiffly. "How are you?"

Mrs. Price bobbed.

"Nicely, thank you, m'lady, if it wasn't that my 'art is brykin'."

"Too bad," said Lady Lydia coldly. "You must do something about it."

"You must do something about it," said Tony. "I just knocked her 17 yards 2 feet and 11 inches with my car. A European record."

To the visitor from a far land Lady Lydia could be stern.

"I hope you're not hurt, my dear," she said amiably. "My nephew, when he gets into a steering wheel, is a public nuisance. You are the system, aren't you, from young Price's shop? I must get you to look at my hand next time I'm in London."

"And if," resumed Mrs. Price, suddenly deciding to address her remarks to Sir Herbert and fixing him with an Ancient Mariner eye, "you ask my me 'art is brykin'?"

"I don't, dash it," said Sir Herbert, recoiling.

Lady Lydia came to the rescue of her hard-pressed mate.

"Slingby," she said, "take Price into the housekeeper's room and give her some port and anything else she wants."

"All I want is a little love and affection," the guest of honor pointed out, dabbing at her eyes with a soiled handkerchief. "Can't I have a bit of a word with you, m'lord?"

"I'll come and see you later, Nannie," said Tony. It was plain to him that his Aunt Lydia had all of Mrs. Price's voice, but her system could support. "I've got to take my car back to the garage."

"I see," said the sufferer, descending further into the depths. "Your car means more to you than I do—me that's done so much for you."

Lady Lydia and Sir Herbert exchanged glances.

"Slingby!" said Lady Lydia authoritatively.

The butler knew his place too well to throw a look of sympathy and understanding in her direction, but he puffed like one who saw just what she meant.

"Very good, m'lady." He turned to his sister. "Come on, if you please, and don't be silly."

Just as Lady Lydia, a moment before, had "puffed up" the butler's eye like a hostess at a dinner party, so now did Slingby pick up Polly's. He had not known Polly long, but he had seen enough of her to be sure that she was a girl to be relied on at a time like this.

Nor was his confidence misplaced. Obeying the silent call, Polly Brown went to Miss Price and, taking her arm, started to lead her off.

"Come along, Mrs. Price," she said cheerfully. "I'll do you a lot of good to sit down and have a rest."

Mrs. Price considered this. She seemed doubtful. But if I wanted to, I could...

"Price!" cried Sir Herbert sharply. The injured woman looked at him as if she were seeing him for the first time.

"Why, 'ow do you do, Sir Herbert. I was just saying..."

"Never mind what you were just saying," interrupted Lady Lydia. "Lord Drotwiche will see you again before you go."

"Of course," said Tony.

Ma Price shook her head—a head on which, like the Mona Lisa's, all the sorrows of the world seemed to have fallen.

"He hasn't any love left for me—none at all."

"Nonsense!" It was Sir Herbert who spoke. "Of course he has. Now, run along, there's a good woman. . . . Tell me, you've been getting your pension all right, haven't you?"

"Oh, yes, I've been getting my pension. But sometimes, I wonder if it's worth it. It seems like sellin' your birthright for a mess of porridge."

With a final sniff, she permitted Polly to lead her from the room. Slingby brought up the rear of the procession, his manner a nice blend of disclaiming any connection with the scene and of apology for having such a sister.

Tony was staring after her.

"What on earth was she talking about?"

"Nothing. Nothing." Sir Herbert flicked his head irritably, as if shaking off a fly. "She's tight. Better take her up to your sitting room, Lydia, and keep her there till it's time for her to go home."

"Yes, I think you're right."

Tony looked from one to the other in astonishment.

"Good heavens!" he said. "Why? What's all the trouble?"

"She's a garzulous old fool," said Sir Herbert shortly, "and in her present condition goodness knows what she might say to the servants."

"Oh, I don't know," Sir Herbert shuffled uncomfortably. "She's quite capable of inventing stories about you."

"What my father?"

"Or me. Or anyone. For heaven's sake, don't keep asking questions. Tony could make nothing of this."

"What on earth are you so nervous about?"

"Nervous? Nonsense. I'm not nervous."

Tony uttered a sudden whoop.

"My God! I've got it, Uncle Herbert. Ma Price is a bit of your mucky past."

"Don't be idiotic, Tony," said Lady Lydia.

"Do hurry, Lydia," said Sir Herbert. "Don't stand here wasting time. Get her and keep her with you till she's slept it off. Even now she may be talking."

As the door closed behind Lady Lydia, Tony turned jovially to his uncle and proposed to plumb this thing to the bottom.

"Now, then, Uncle Herbert, look me in the eye. Was the good lady anything but 25 years ago?"

Sir Henry snorted.

"Of course not. Twenty-five years ago I was a hell of a fellow with the pick of the musical comedy field."

"H'm!" said Tony. "Do I believe you on don't I? Your manner is evasive and suspicious. I always wondered why you insisted on Ma Price having a pension."

"Good God, boy! Isn't a faithful servant entitled to a pension?"

"Oh, I don't much grudge it. I'm very fond of Ma—especially at a distance. Of Syd, her offspring, not quite so fond. I suspect that lad of saying nasty things about the aristocracy in Hyde Park. He looks at me with an accusing eye; as if he thought it was the likes of me who block the wheels of progress. He'd be as bad as I if he knew what a dashed sweat it was being an earl. I wish he could be out for good."

"Good God!" Sir Herbert's car was almost a yelp. "Don't say that."

"Yes, I mean it. I'm fed to the collar stud with all these fellows who think an earl hasn't a care in the world. I suppose they think an estate runs itself. If Syd Prince were suddenly to find himself in my shoes."

"Please! Please!"

"What's the matter? What are you quivering about? Insisting on 'I'm not quivering'."

"You're quivering like a wind-bell flower in a high wind, Uncle Herbert, and what I want to know—"

"Oh, 'ere you are!"

Harold (Red) Grange, who was one of the dreams of C. C. (Cold Cash) Pyle during the golden era of promotional ventures, has no doubt made the week a most unpleasant one for Bob Zuppke, the Illinois head coach.

Zuppke, as were a great many coaches in the east, was a bit jealous of the Notre Dame system and its success as employed by the late Knute Rockne. And praise of the Notre Dame system set him off, so to speak. He sizzled.

And this week, one of the best halfbacks he ever had, appears with his ghost writer in The Saturday Evening Post in an article entitled "Lo, the Poor Tackle." And in discussing football systems he has faced, Grange says, through his journalistic ecstasies, "Illinois will always be my school. I'm always for the Illini. But I must admit that the Notre Dame system on offense is the best one I've ever seen."

This, no doubt, will reduce the fiery little Illinois coach to a well-done piece of toast. Grange sets him up and then knocks him over in one or two paragraphs in the story.

Grange keeps going along. He's playing professional football again this fall. His average last fall was five and a half yards on each run. Which isn't bad at all. A lot of halfbacks would like that average.

Jim McMillen, who played in the line one year while Grange was at Illinois, was talking about the erstwhile "Galloping Ghost" before his wrestling match with Dick Davis at the auditorium Tuesday night.

"I don't know what happened between Red and Zuppke," he said. "They weren't so friendly for a while. I'd like to see Zup. When he reads that stuff about the Notre Dame system. He'll burn down."

"I saw Grange play two weeks ago. He was still good, although not in shape. He got away several times, but his legs gave out. They caught him from behind. In the old days all he needed was a couple of inches in front and he was gone. No one could catch him. He's smarter now, though, and he plays with his head a lot."

I was interested in what sort of a team Grange was, whether he was a star which the remainder of the team had to carry or whether he had qualities of leadership.

"He was a great teamman," said McMillen. "I recall the Ohio State game of 1923. We were not going anywhere. Nothing worked. We got to quarreling among ourselves. Grange got us together. 'Listen,' he said, 'cut all this out. Just keep plugging and after a while we'll get going.' And sure enough about six plays later he got away for about 45 yards and a touchdown."

Professional football goes well in the larger cities and in industrial sections where there is no college game. McMillen is part owner of the Chicago Bears. They paid, last year, 20 per cent on the investment.

PRO MARKET GLUTTED.

The poor linemen, it seems, get no more breaks in the pro game than in the college game. If as much. There are so many football players willing to play for small sums that the business is not nearly as lucrative as it once was.

"The backs get the money," said McMillen. "Joe Savoldi told me he got $1,000 a game for three games when he resigned from Notre Dame. I know I was getting $175 per game when I started in the pro game and I was next to the highest paid lineman they had. Grange and the star backs were drawing the big money."

"In this day and time we get good linemen for $50 per game or less. The stars get $75. The promoters are pretty smart. They know how to talk. When I signed up they talked to me so much I felt I was robbing them for taking the money. The market is glutted now. There are a lot of ex-football men selling bonds who are delighted to play football a couple of times a week and pick up $50 per game."

COLLEGE GAME THE ATTRACTION.

McMillen does not see how the pro game can ever rival the college game as an attraction. "You'll find interest shifting," he said. "When a team has been up there for a few years and then loses all its good material you'll hear arguments that people are losing interest in football."

"If Georgia has a poor year," he said, "you'll hear some of the alumni saying they aren't interested in football as they used to be. I heard that last year from some of the Tech alumni. But if interest slumps here it is picking up at Nashville, where Vanderbilt is winning. And I saw in a Knoxville paper the other day where more season tickets had been sold at Tennessee than ever before. And Tulane and Auburn have plenty of interest. I guess it balances up."

McMillen's analysis of the situation is quite accurate. The interest boils when the teams are winning, bringing home the bacon. Defeat is never interesting, even in retrospect.

WAY DOWN YONDER IN NEW ORLEANS.

There is not a great deal of comparison between Harry Mehre's 1929 season when Georgia lost to Oglethorpe and then came on to win from Furman, Yale and North Carolina, and this season. There is almost no comparison at all.

Georgia's material is not the same. The nucleus of the 1929 team was stronger than the basic material of this year's eleven. Yet much interest attends the Saturday game in New Orleans. There is no reason why Georgia cannot keep the score close.

Tulane may not miss Felts. But Tulane will hardly be keyed as high this week as last. They are not thinking about whether they will beat Georgia, but how much they will beat Georgia. And such thoughts aren't conducive to mental and physical alertness.

WHO KILLED COCK ROBIN?

All this pro and con about who exposed Nollie C. (Papa) Felts, Tulane's ineligible fullback, is a bit ridiculous. It reminds someone of the old song about who killed Cock Robin?

Let me suggest that what made Nollie C. Felts ineligible was the fact that he signed a professional baseball contract and played in 20 professional games in the Cotton States league in 1927. The Reach and Spalding Baseball Guides and the records of the National Baseball Association are the accusing witnesses. And no one else.

And the ironical thing of it all is that the first charge is said to have come from a baseball fan in Mississippi, who wrote the conference asking if professional ball players were eligible. That, at least, is the story going the rounds as to how the conference finally thought of looking in the baseball record books.

Abbott Scores At Last for Duke

DURHAM, N. C., Oct. 5.—(AP)—Ken Abbott, reserve fullback at Duke University, waited a long time for a touchdown.

It wasn't that he hadn't made any in the past two years. He had crossed the goal line four times but each time there was a penalty on the Blue Devils and the play called back.

In the Duke-V. M. I. game Saturday Abbott crossed the goal line and just as he went over the referee blew his whistle again. Die-gusted, Abbott tossed the ball back. But this time the joke wasn't on him—it was V. M. I.'s penalty and Abbott's touchdown was good.

Canzoneri's Fight Is Halted by Rain

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—(UP)—Rain caused postponement of tonight's scheduled 10-round non-title bout between Tony Canzoneri, lightweight champion, and Frankie Petrolle, of Schenectady, N. Y., at Ebbets Field. The bout will be held next Wednesday night.

NAVY'S NEW MEN.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 5.—(UP)—Joseph Koehnig, of New Orleans, and Kenneth McKee, of Irontown, Pa., did excellent offense work yesterday when they were given a chance on Navy's first-string team. Nelson Samuel, of Maryland, made a fine showing at halfback.

KENTUCKY'S LINE OF THE FINEST TECH WILL FACE

Jackets May Find Air Route Means of Solving Wildcats' Defense.

In the event that big Kentucky line should suddenly put the thumb screws on Georgia Tech's running game Saturday, the Jackets are prepared to take to the air, forward and laterally, as a means of circumventing the stonewall front that the Wildcats presented against V. M. I. and Sewanee.

In practice and against Clemson, the Tech offense showed that it could be deceptive when the occasion arose. The Engineers masked the ball well, according to veteran observers' opinions, and when time came to pass did it effectively enough for the first game.

BIG LINE.

The center of Kentucky's line represents some 640 pounds of manpower in the persons of Frank Seale, 220-pound center; Lawrence Davidson, 220-pound guard; and John Drury, 100, who plays either a guard or a tackle. The rest of the Wildcat line balances proportionately. George Skinner, tackle, is 185. The Kentucky ends are especially fine ends. Joe Rupert, who recovered a fumble on Sewanee's 5-yard line Saturday that led to a score, is another 190-pounder. "Dutch" Kreuter or Duff will be at the other flank.

It stands to reason that the team which undertakes to blast through this kind of a line will find the going very tough indeed, so on the basis of conjecture, Tech may be expected to open up a highly versatile attack, playing the daring open game which is so dear to the spectators' eyes.

Don't take this to mean that Tech hasn't a line plunger capable of knocking off yards through the Wildcat line when a first down depends upon it. Silent Bent Cherry is that man on the line but he stops this very capable fullback when a line play is the logical expedient. Tech has some quick opening plays that can make the variety in the variety line, but the left of Kentucky's line leads to the idea that most of Tech's gaining will be at the flanks and in the air.

WEATHER HURTS.

The weather has been a terrible handicap this week to the young men of the Flats. It was worse yesterday than the day before, but there is no time to worry about sunbathing and rain. Coaches Alexander, Bobby Dodd, Jack Cannon, Robinson et al., muffled to the gills in wind-breakers, with the variety in the variety line, "rain pants" behind the protection of the east stands. The oil slicks helped keep the damp and chill out while the squad did a general rehearsal of all they had.

Look plenty of grit, too, to face such weather for an hour and a half. The spectators who see Saturday's game would appreciate it if they could have seen the Jackets plugging away at such a disadvantage with the elements.

Trainer Mike Chambers stated last night that he felt practically sure that Tarzan Lackey, guard, would be ready to use against the Wildcats and that unless more injuries crop out, the Tech team will be in well-nigh perfect physical condition.

BOATS FEATURE AT FAIR TODAY

The race for the southern championship in motorboat circles will be resumed over the smooth lake course at Lakewood park today at 2:30 p. m. as the day's leading sports feature of the Southeastern fair.

There will be three heats run in the five-for-all which was started on Monday, in addition to the Southern championship race.

In Monday's Class C event, Louis Trotter, piloting his own craft, upheld Atlanta's reputation as the home of the leading motorboat drivers of the south. Trotter won the Class C race against such competition as Claude Smith, Carl Lathrop, Cal Kid Cutler, George Miller, George Mahoney, George Cost, Cal Malone, Mark Trammell, Troy Wynn, Piggy Green et al.

With motorboat races this afternoon, prize fights and fireworks in front of the grandstand tonight, the fair program was resumed after having been temporarily halted by rain.

Auto Races Run Saturday.

Weeping skies and a 20-hour moisture-steeped track forced auto race officials to abandon all hopes of starting the auto race events slated over the Southeastern fair oval yesterday afternoon, and prompted them in charge to augment the motor competition schedule for next Saturday with the speed battles originally scheduled for Wednesday.

All drivers entered in yesterday's events will remain in Atlanta, and with the added time in which they may add the never-ending final adjustments to their machines a program of madcap motor madness will be the result Saturday of Wednesday's postponement.

Arch Powell, Illinois state champion; Swan Peterson, runner-up to Powell for Illinois honor; Sig Haugland, Florida state titleholder; and Buddy Calloway, Georgia's own kingpin pilot, will tangle in what gives promise of being one of the most spectacular four-cornered match auto races ever started.

Stagg Is Confident As His Boys Drill

CHICAGO.—With prospects bright for a successful invasion of Yale, his old alma mater, Coach Amos Alonzo Stagg's face beamed confidence today as he sent his players through a lively dummy scrimmage.

A senior of the 70-year-old coach and his 31 players were planned for tomorrow when they entrain for the east.

PETREL SQUAD OFF FOR GAME AT CINCINNATI

With Revamped Backfield, Robertson Has Hopes for Victory.

By Jack Troy.

In search of the vitamin "V"—which is vital to a healthy football organization—twenty-five Oglethorpe football players, Coach Harry Robertson and assistants are en route to Cincinnati for the Xavier game Friday night.

Spelled out, the vitamin "V" is, as you may suspect, "victory." At the end of last season the Stormy Petrel was a pale and wan bird because of the lack of it.

Now, this vitamin, although proving elusive, has been right at the fingertips of Oglethorpe but by devious and sundry ways has managed to elude its grasp. Unfortunately breaks have been responsible in most instances. Take the Howard game as one example. You take it because the goddess of gridiron fortunes will have it no other way.

LEAD ADVANCE.

Oglethorpe leads the south's week-end inter-sectional advance and seeks, with real determination, a decision over Xavier. The third away game of the season is the Buckeye state. Yesterday's gloomy weather attended the Petrel's last workout before showing off on the Southern for Cincinnati. There was signal practice all day.

Coach Robertson believes the Petrel will be much improved against Xavier. He has shifted the backfield around and seems to have discovered a long-lost offensive punch. To Robertson, the Southern game is finding a pot of gold at the end of a rainbow.

Ray Walker, quarterback; Harry Wright and Jack Robinson, halfbacks; and John Putno, fullback, comprise the new backfield combination, and in scrimmage early this week ran impressively against the freshmen.

The line is intact with Andy Morrow and Red Crane, ends; Dan Kozie and Wayne Pickard, tackles; Captain John Putno, guard; Max Whaley, guards, and Rudy Shouse, center.

Walker will do the passing and kicking for Oglethorpe. All four of the backs are strong runners. Ralph Cobb, Smyrna, Ga., who has developed rapidly, will be inserted in the line. He is a big, powerful, and American pivot must be in the line. "Mammy" Raines, Sam Baker, Phil Hildreth and George Gaillard are other backs certain to play.

Hal McPherson, fullback, and Morley, a tackle, have been advertised as the main threats of the Xavier forces. Petrels will work out at Cincinnati to get the feel of the grounds and acquaint themselves to the "northern lights."

CLARK BOASTS POWERFUL ENDS

The 1932 lineup of the Panthers of Clark University for the opening game with Claflin College Saturday night at Lakewood park, will be composed of nine letter men and three reserves from last year.

Contrary to reports of the past that the local institution would be weaker this year, the squad has taken on new life with the return of "Haug Man" Robinson, all-southern and all-American star of 1931. Jack Robinson, who has been showing up well at center, will remain there at present, with Chief Aiken experimenting with Robinson at one of the flank positions.

Robinson played well last year at various times and is well qualified to take charge. However, Coach Aiken stated that the change would be only temporary, providing Jackson failed to live up to expectations. With Robinson and Reeves playing the flanks, with Ray and Tate for the reserves, Clark University can boast of the best wingmen in the south who will give their opponents plenty of trouble.

The squad is being drilled intensively for the game.

Minnesota Star Is Growing Weaker

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 5.—(UP)—Myron Uhl, University of Minnesota football star, suffering from a broken chest bone and pneumonia, tonight held his own in the team tank, although he was weaker than before.

He is in a critical condition because of a combination of his injury and the flu, which broke the bone two weeks ago during practice.

If he lives another 12 hours he should be out of immediate danger, his physicians said.

KIMBRELL VERY FAST.

AUBURN, Ala., Oct. 5.—A gain of from 5 to 55 yards was credited to Casey Kimbrell, Auburn's 10-second halfback, every time he tucked the piskin under his arms from scrimmage against Erskine. He registered five touchdowns, making a six-point on returning a kick 60 yards.

Richards and Reese Play Here Saturday

Vincent Richards, high-ranking professional tennis star, will appear in an exhibition with Billy Reese, state, city and Cotton States champion, Saturday afternoon at 2:15 o'clock at the Piedmont Driving Club.

There will be no admission charge to the match, it was announced yesterday, and the public is cordially invited. There are seating accommodations for approximately 300 spectators.

Reese, an amateur, yesterday was granted permission by the Atlanta Tennis Association to play against Richards. The latter is on an exhibition tour.

Richards is a sort of "good-will ambassador," the purpose of the tour being to stimulate interest in the game. And the matches in each city are put on free of charge to allow one and all the privilege of seeing them.

Tall, blond Billy Reese is a worthy opponent for Richards and a real exhibition is to be offered.

May See Action Saturday

BUSTER MOTT, GEORGIA STAR

TWENTY GRAND NEWARK LEADS LOSSES AT LAUREL LITTLE SERIES

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—(AP)—Twenty Grand, making the second start of his comeback campaign, was defeated by the lightly regarded C. V. Whitney's Mad Frump in the one and one-half mile Annapolis handicap at Laurel, Md., today.

The four-year-old son of St. Germans from Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree stable which was forced out of competition by a leg ailment and only recently returned to the races, pulled up lame after finishing second, beaten a length and a half by Mad Frump. The third away game of the season is the Buckeye state. Yesterday's gloomy weather attended the Petrel's last workout before showing off on the Southern for Cincinnati. There was signal practice all day.

Twenty Grand, the horse that whipped the greatest three-year-olds last year, was the first of the battle from flag fall to finish but when it came to the final test, the drive through the stretch, his injured leg began to fail him and he was forced to go down fighting. It was the same injury that caused his withdrawal from the $20,000 Havre De Grace handicap last Saturday.

Under Charley Kurlinger's guidance, the Greentree star was never far back of the pace. He made War Hero, the early pace-setter, say quite as the leaders swung out of the back stretch but he was unable to apply the pressure that made him famous last year.

Mad Frump, which had been shuffled back at the start, moved up steadily and challenged Twenty Grand at the head of the pack. The big chestnut held on gamely under his crushing impost of 126 pounds but Mad Frump, enjoying an 18-pound pull in weights, gave up the struggle and was drawing away under Buddy Hanford's vigorous hand ride at the end.

Dickey Joins Benedict Ranks

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—(AP)—With a goodly portion of his world-champion teammates as guests, William Dickey, catcher of the New York Yankees, was married today to Miss Violet Arnold.

The service was read in St. Mark's Episcopal church in Jackson Heights, Long Island.

The best man and matron of honor were Sammy Byrd, Yankee outfielder, and his bride yesterday.

Vernon (Lefty) Gomez, stellar Yankee pitcher, and his bride-to-be, June O'Day, the actress, were among the guests. They refused to disclose the date of their wedding, but friends said it would probably be later this week.

Dickey's home is in Little Rock, Ark. His wife, who quit the cast of "Showboat" last week, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Arnold, of Jackson Heights.

The Dickey's will combine their wedding trip with the Canadian barnstorming tour of the Yankees. They have not decided where to make their between-the-seasons home.

But like Mrs. Byrd, Mrs. Dickey said she would make the baseball trips with her husband.

Glenna and Helen Play at Hot Springs

HOT SPRINGS, Va., Oct. 5.—(UP)—Mrs. Glenna Collett Vane, of Philadelphia, and Helen Hicks, of New York, will renew their battle for supremacy in golf when they begin play Monday in the Hot Springs fall championships.

The tournament will be played over the Homestead course.

A cold rain Wednesday prevented Atlanta's senior golfers from qualifying for the annual tournament which will be played next week on the Ansley Park course, but two more days remain before the qualifying closes late Friday afternoon.

Glenna Moore, with an 80, Tuesday afternoon went into the lead among the early players.

SMITHS FACE G.M.A. TONIGHT AT BALL PARK

Game Is First of Title Affairs; Time Is 7:30. Others Play Friday.

By Roy White.

Tech High and Georgia Military Academy will meet at 7:30 o'clock tonight at Ponce de Leon park in the first of a series of games to determine the city's pre football champions for 1932. Tech High is the defending champion, having been awarded the crown last year when a Boys' High player was ruled ineligible, to the Smiths had been beaten, 13 to 0, by the Purple Hurricane.

Tonight's game also marks the first of eight games in which local teams will be involved during Thursday and Friday and it looms as one of the outstanding pre affairs of the season.

The game tonight not only marks the first step towards selection of a city winner but it will be another move in the direction of determining the northern division champion of the Georgia Intercollegiate Athletic Association.

Tech High opened its season with a victory over Etowah, Tenn., lost to her superior Spartanburg team, champions of South Carolina last season, and then came back with an impressive victory over Madison Aggies last Friday night.

G. M. A. won its first game with Carrollton Aggies and then was tied by a scrapping Notre Dame prep eleven from Chattanooga, Tenn.

The Cadets will have the advantage in weight both in the line and backfield and the right side of the G. M. A. line packs plenty of "beef." G. M. A. backfield is heavier than Tech's, heavier than the Smiths and in Green the Cadets have one of the best prep punters the city has seen in many years. He has kicked well over 50 yards and out of bounds within the 15-yard line several times in recent games.

W. O. Chaney, principal of Tech High, has invited Governor Richard Russell Jr. and Governor-elect Eugene Talmadge to be guests of the Smiths at tonight's game.

TECH HIGH G. M. A. Bonner, 178 E. Byers, 160 Orr, 178 L. Stephens, 176 Robinson, 178 C. Clark, 182 Smith, 162 R. Rice, 182 Hines, 178 G. Moore, 168 Barrow, 178 R. Beal, 202 Eaves, 160 E. B. Boul, 174 Smith, 154 L. E. Moore, 175 Fitts, 149 L. E. Moore, 175 Doyal, 149 F. Allen, 178

Boys' High Works For Darlington.

While Tech High and G. M. A. are moving slowly towards a city championship, Boys' High will be resting up and working with Darlington Saturday night.

Darlington has a vastly improved team and with Art Anderson to lead, the Hackett brothers and Oxley, in the visiting backfield, Boys' High faces a real foe.

Boys' High centered its practice Wednesday afternoon on stopping a forward passing combination. Anderson is one of the smoothest passers in prep circles and had been throwing a football since he was old enough to handle one. His rifle like passes added materially in Decatur winning two North Georgia intercollegiate conference championships. In a team championship game two years ago a heave of more than 40 yards resulted in the winning Decatur touchdown.

Vines Leaves For Foreign Matches

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 5.—(AP)—America's national Wimbledon tennis champion, Ellsworth Vines, sailed today on the liner Maui with three teammates to match strokes with the leading players of Hawaii, Australia and New Zealand.

The rangy Pasadena youth, holder of the major titles of the game, was accompanied by John Van Ryn and Edw. H. Hackett, who sailed on the Davis Cup team, and Keith Gledhill, with whom he won the national doubles title.

They will spend eight days in Honolulu, traveling from there to Australia. They will go to New Zealand the latter part of January and are expected to reach the United States March 1.

Vines was accompanied by his recent bride. The wives of Van Ryn and Hackett also were in the party.

The national champion had little to say, especially on his somewhat ordinary showing in recent appearances, when he was defeated by Jiro Satoh, Japanese Davis Cup star.

Wildcats Drilled In Passing Game

EVANSTON, Ill.—Coach Dick Hanley, figuring the Michigan game will be a wide open affair, drilled his Northwestern players in the passing game today. The varsity looked good, both offensively and defensively with "Fug" Renter starring. Thirty-three players were picked to make the Michigan trip.

Middle Georgia Team Works for Stetson

COCHRAN, Ga., Oct. 5.—Middle Georgia College scrimmaged today in preparation for the second game of the season against Stetson University in De Land, Fla., Friday night.

The only injury received in the game last Friday was a knee injury received by Graves. It is not known yet whether he will be able to play Friday night. Nix, who received a broken hand during the first week of scrimmage, is out keeping in shape but will not be committed to play for a week or two yet.

MEHRE'S CHANCES OF SEEING ACTION SATURDAY GOOD

Mehre Thinks Veteran Halfback's Eligibility Chances Favorable.

By Jimmy Jones.

"Buster" Mott, the Beau Sabreur of the Georgia backfield, who sulked in his tent while his mates went forth to wage futile war against V. P. I. last Saturday, in all probability will be in the Duke's chain of command to face the great Green Wave, of Tulane, next Saturday in New Orleans.

This report, which will warm many alumni hearts on this chilly morning, was made by Mehre himself via the long-distance telephone along about twilight of yesterday.

"Mott has been working hard on his studies, he has one more examination Thursday morning, which I believe he will pass and then there is nothing to keep him from playing in Saturday's and following games, Mr. Mehre reported.

WORKS OUT.

The "Buster," according to Harry, worked out with the Bulldogs yesterday and seemed to be in fine form and spirit. He wore a new shape by putting on his uniform daily.

"We put it squarely up to Buster and told him it was up to him to get eligible if he wanted to play this year and he has reason and with excellent spirit," Mehre added.

If Mott is given the pedagogical o. k. today it will do a world of good toward spurring the young Georgia players to a peak of morale, since he is the most experienced back on the squad and a born leader. Georgia players thought they missed Buster's quick action and direction of their defense Saturday as much as they missed his carrying of the ball. Outside of the chummy report on Mott, Coach Mehre's victory bulletins out of Athens was about "the same old 7 and 6," as he put it, meaning, in his own witty way, that there wasn't much difference in the general quality of his squad since those doleful digits were hung out on the scoreboard after V. P. I.'s surprise victory.

MAXWELL PROMOTED.

There are two more items that are decidedly worth mentioning, however. Dick Maxwell, end, who saw some varsity work last season, but who has been languishing with the third string this year, has shown such marked improvement in practice this week that Coach Mehre has promoted him to the varsity. Maxwell's task of tanking first team and has good mind of starting him against Tulane.

Leroy Moorehead, guard, who played the entire game against V. P. I., has been 21 all week and 10 pounds heavier than the Smiths and in Green the Cadets have one of the best prep punters the city has seen in many years. He has kicked well over 50 yards and out of bounds within the 15-yard line several times in recent games.

W. O. Chaney, principal of Tech High, has invited Governor Richard Russell Jr. and Governor-elect Eugene Talmadge to be guests of the Smiths at tonight's game.

Gridiron Rules Are Discussed By Secretary

(Editor's Note—Because of widespread comment on the 1932 football rules, the Associated Press requested William R. Langford, secretary of the national football committee, to clarify the principal changes from the 1931 rules. This is the first of a series of four explanatory articles by Mr. Langford.)

By William S. Langford, Secretary National Football Rules Committee.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—(AP)—Players and the football public generally have always expected the man carrying the ball to be in the hands of ground that he can possibly gain until the ball becomes dead.

Under the former rule when any part of the player in possession of the ball, except his hands or feet, touched the ground, while he was in the grasp of an opponent, the ball became dead automatically and play stopped.

This year's rule reads as follows: "The ball is dead and shall be so declared by the referee: (a) When a player having the ball goes out of bounds; (b) When the ball is so held that his forward progress is stopped, or (except the holder of the ball in a placekick) when any portion of his person, except his hands or feet, touches the ground."

The change made was

V. P. I.'S CHANCE TO BEAT LINERS IS PRESENTED

Gobblers' Victory Over Georgia Makes Them Favorites Saturday.

Maryland scored a clean sweep over Virginia's four Southern conference football teams a year ago but indications are the count will be at least partially reversed this season.

Graduation struck heavily into the Old Liners' camp and in place of a veteran club, Coach Curley Byrd has a few experienced men and a bunch of sophomores.

With this group Maryland lost to Virginia last week, 7 to 6. Saturday Maryland plays Virginia Tech, at College Park, and on the strength of the Gobblers' victory over Georgia, V. P. I. should trim the Byrdmen.

A victory would be sweet for the Blackburg Cadets for Maryland has defeated them three years in a row, including the 20-0 lacing of last season. Later Maryland plays V. M. I. and Washington and Lee, neither of which have shown much power.

Duke supporters, recalling the fine defensive play against Davidson and V. M. I., are confident Auburn's fast backs will be halted at Birmingham Saturday. Duke's goal has not been crossed this season and the Blue Devils forward line has allowed but five first downs. Moreover, Duke has been scored upon in but three of its 12 games since the start of the 1931 season.

On the other hand, Auburn enthusiasts say Duke this year has not faced such an array of quick-starting and speedy ball-carriers as Alabama Poly will offer.

Vanderbilt is pointing for Tulane October 15 and devoting little time to preparation for the breather with Western Kentucky Saturday.

This is the "make or break" game for both teams and Vandy hopes to avenge the 10-0 setback of last season. The fine play of Burton Shackleford has prompted him to the first string in the Commodore's backfield ends, Foster, Myers and Subhrinrich are the others.

Georgia Tech drilled on a muddy field yesterday, readying itself for the expected tough game with Kentucky here Saturday. The kicking department continued to receive close attention with Dean, Ferguson, Barron and Galloway all booting the ball.

At Athens, Coach Harry McEneaney shifted his squad around in an effort to find a better combination than was used against V. P. I. Young replaced Sullivan in quarterback and there were several line changes.

North Carolina State worked on pass defense for the remainder of the week, showing well defensively in a workout against North Carolina State players. Coach Jess Neely boosted Stevens to a first-string backfield post, striding on his work for V. M. I. on hearing Bill Smith, quarterback, would be in the Cadet line-up after being out with injuries.

Florida prepared for its opener with Sewanee Saturday. It appeared that several sophomores would be used by Coach Bachman. Sewanee listed another injury as Joe Gee, fullback, turned up with a sprained ankle. Rich replaced him.

Oglethorpe entrained for Cincinnati where it plays St. Xavier Friday night in the week's first intercollegiate go.

Sandlot Meeting Called Tonight

An important organization meeting of all sandlot football managers and officials will be held at 7:30 o'clock tonight at the Y. M. C. A. Every sandlot team in the city and others who desire to organize a team is requested to have a representative present.

The sandlot leagues are sponsored by the boys' division of the Rotary Club and will be under the supervision of J. L. Cook.

THE SPORTLIGHT By Kenneth Rice

Concerning Veterans.

They say that Ruth, at 38, has two more years to go; And Dempsey, younger than the Babe, has put the game aside; You know how Tunney, younger still, passed up the fancy dough And Bobby Jones, at 28, let all his titles slide. There's Tilden, nearing 40, who may soon decide to rest, And Hagen, in a year or two, may drop his final cup; But wait—against the skyline in the dark, youthful zest, Alonzo Stagg, at 70, is merely warming up!

I hear them speak of middle age, at 45 or less; I hear them talk of waning stars who've known their 20 years In some hard game that has its run of trouble and of stress, Who feel the day has come at last to duck the fading cheers; And then along the open field I see the burning flame Of one who started above the mass when Hector was a pup; I see the spirit, born of youth, still flare above the game Where A. A. Stagg, at 70, is merely warming up!

Between Verses.
As Homer once remarked to Sappho (Maybe I'm wrong), "It is also a long time between verses."

I still recall unfurling a not quite deathless ode to a football coach by the name of A. A. Stagg just 27 years ago.

The theme of it was, "To the only man who ever conquered Yost." It followed Chicago's famous 2-0-0 victory over Michigan for the first Wolverine defeat in five campaigns. Yost and his Michigan machines had ruled the midwest year after year when such stars as Heston, Snow, Sweeley, Herstein, Hammond and others ran roughshod over all rivalry.

In 1905 Stagg was a veteran coach, who had served nearly 20 years. The late Walter Eckersall, one of football's greatest, was his quarterback. It was in this game that Clark, of Michigan, was swept back of his own line for a safety, after attempting to run back a punt.

That was 27 years ago when your correspondent awarded Mr. Stagg a garland of roundies. It would be pleasing to know that around 1930 either I, or the ghost writer working in behalf of my forgotten dust, can yield him greater justice.

Forty-five years in harness and still at the gallows—will somebody kindly page Lindar or Homers, Virgil or Horace—Shelley or Keats?

Then and Now.
No one, so we have been informed, can tell what a day will bring forth. A year's passing makes even harder guessing.

There was the Grimes of 1931 and the World Series Grimes of 1932. A year ago around this date Georgia was celebrating the overthrow of Yale. October sunlight, shining on the red clay hills, had a golden glow.

Now Georgia, after a defeat by V. P. I., is facing a fast, powerful Tulane team in New Orleans on Saturday. There are few sure things in football, but the Athletics in red and black will have a hard time warding off a Green Wave headed by Don Zimmerman—an emerald flash who can pass, kick and run.

A year ago California closed out a fine season by holding U. S. C. to a single touchdown—and then beating Stanford.

To date California has fallen before the drive of Santa Clara and on Saturday meets an even stronger foe in St. Mary's, with U. S. C. and Stanford still to come.

Checking Injuries.
Football's officials face another tough year. The new rules will help or should help to reduce injuries, but the man-to-man contact at high speed, that football offers makes it a hard game on the human system. Yet some way must be found to reduce the injuries. Here is the greatest weakness of the game as a sport of competition.

For example, last fall Dan McGugin at Vanderbilt had a strong looking squad on October 1. By October 15 he had almost no reserves left.

Last fall Notre Dame had five or six available fullbacks and at least eight guards and tackles. Yet in the course of the Navy, Southern California and Army games the entire list was practically unfit for duty at the finish.

A coach will often open the season with 20 or 22 good men, and finish with a team a dozen left in shape for active duty after the first few games.

The casualty toll in the way of injuries has been entirely too high. Keen, fearless and uncompromising

ECONOMIC REFORM URGED BY COOPER

Mississippi Governor Appeals for Salvation of Federal Credit.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 5.—(P)—The major consideration confronting America today, Governor M. S. Connor, of Mississippi, told the American Bankers' Association here today, is the large group of problems bound up in the one problem of governmental credit.

"American statesmanship has been challenged, and is on trial," he asserted. "Tax relief must be secured, and at the same time sufficient funds must be provided to support the essential functions of government and to safeguard governmental credit, the full discharge of which is the highest form of public service."

He declared proper application of economy and efficiency will result in a reduction of governmental costs, that governmental administrative machinery should be overhauled along practical business-like lines to increase efficiency and reduce costs of governmental operations, that better control of local bond issues in the last 30 years would have placed the United States today in incomparably better position than it is now, and that no governmental function is more directly related to the public welfare than that of supporting government by taxation.

If businessmen devote all their talents to the transacting of private business, and do not concern themselves in an unselfish and patriotic way with governmental problems, he said, "they are indeed unwise, and later will pay the price of their folly."

Issuance of additional currency was termed inadequate as a depression remedy, he said, and that of Milton P. A. in addressing the national bank division of the association.

He said additional currency of nearly a billion dollars for national banks authorized by a rider to the home loan bill passed by the last session of congress as a measure of "mild inflation" did not seem necessary.

"The crying need," Wilson said, "was not for more currency, but for more sound uses to which it could be put."

Liberalization of the discount features of the federal reserve bank, which had previously been provided for in other measures already made law, was urged as a means to agriculture, industry, trade and transportation that is almost beyond measure.

"The association therefore goes on record before the people of this country," he said, "as insisting upon the reduction of public expenditures, and as being unalterably opposed to the continuation of the present high rates of taxation and the progressive piling up of the public debt."

By automatic promotion, Francis H. Sisson, vice president of the Guaranty Trust Company, of New York, became the president of the association, rising from the vice presidency under Harry J. Haas, of Philadelphia.

Frank M. Law, president of the First National Bank of Houston, Texas, was promoted to the second to the first vice presidency, and Rudolph S. Hecht, president of the Hibernia Bank & Trust Company, of New Orleans, became second vice president. A new second vice president will be elected at the 1933 convention at Chicago.

FITZGERALD AGENCY WINS POSTER AWARD
CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—First award in the annual nation-wide display of advertising posters held here this week was given to the Fitzgerald Advertising Agency of New Orleans, which has recently opened an office in Atlanta.

The prize winner was one of a series of three sheet posters executed for the Wesson Oil and Snowdrift Sales Company. This was the second national art award accorded the Fitzgerald Agency in the last few months.

At the annual art directors' exhibit in New York this spring, one of the agency's advertisements for General American Tank Car Corporation was selected as the best black and white illustration of the year. Previously the same ad had won prizes in the large northern and eastern agencies.

RIVER INTERESTS FIGHT DIXIE RAIL RATE CUTS
CINCINNATI, Oct. 5.—(P)—The groundswell of protest against the Ohio and Mississippi on possible reductions in southern railroad freight rates.

Called by Alex W. Dann, of Pittsburgh, vice president of the Union Barge Line and president of the Pittsburgh Coal Exchange, representatives of the river and barge interests met here yesterday for preliminary discussion of steps they might take. No decisions were made, it was said, the meeting being rather a round-table discussion of river freight rate problems, in preparation for formal organization likely at another gathering two weeks hence.

STEEL EXECUTIVE HITS PRICE CUTTING TREND
CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—(P)—Charles F. Abbott, executive director of the American Institute of Steel Construction, Inc., of New York, said today that unless competitive industries stopped price cutting practices the government might be forced to take command of the situation.

"There is only one way to make money in business," Abbott said in his address before the National Paper Trade Association. "That way is to sell the product at a price that includes total cost plus a profit."

'Stubborn' Flea Causes Illness of Physician
WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—(P)—A flea that stubbornly refused to give its all for science and the health of mankind, is suspected of having put to bed Dr. R. E. Dyer, assistant director of the National Institute of Health, who is ill with a malady tentatively diagnosed as typhus.

Dr. Dyer and others at the institute have been attempting to produce a vaccine for typhus, using the ground-up bodies of infected fleas. One of the little jumpers is accused of having fastened upon the doctor instead of quietly submitting to being smashed up in a mortar.

Complete Harmony Rules

While the delegates cheered madly, Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt and Alfred E. Smith Tuesday dispelled the only cloud of discord that has been hanging over the democratic party by greeting each other heartily at the state convention in Albany. Smith had been estranged from Roosevelt since the latter beat him for the presidential nomination in June, but the picture above gives ample evidence that harmony once more reigns. Following this reunion Smith took the platform to make a vigorous appeal for the election of Roosevelt and the repudiation of republican hangers. Associated Press photo.

FRANK, AL TO BURY HATCHET IN HOOVER SAYS WILL ROGERS

PHOENIX, Ariz., Oct. 5.—(UP)—"Well, it looks like Frank and Al are going to bury the hatchet—in Hoover," said Will Rogers during a short halt here today on his way by plane from Los Angeles to Mexico City.

Rogers was met at the airport by a delegation of citizens, one of whom wore a suit made principally of Arizona copper. He offered it to Rogers, who declined it, saying in reference to the present price of the metal:

"The one I'm wearing is poor enough."

Asked about the presidential election, Rogers said he thought "Hoover made out pretty well last night. Somebody's been coaching him."

"I'm hoping the election'll be a tie," he said, "and they'll have to shoot it out."

RAIL HEADS MEET, TO SEEK WAGE CUTS

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—(P)—Executives of the leading railroads of the country assembled here today to consider further steps in their move for a 20 per cent cut in the wages of rail workers.

Reports in rail circles reflected a widening belief in the possibility that the executives would seek to compromise with President Hoover on his stand for a postponement of action on the wage question until the end of the year.

LUKE LEA TRIAL DATE TO BE SET THIS MONTH
NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 5.—(P)—Criminal Judge Charles Gilbert said today that the conspiracy to defraud charge against Colonel Luke Lea, of Nashville, would be set for trial.

Under the agreement, the judge said, either side within the next three weeks may call for setting of the case.

NATIVE SON.
AUBURN, Ala., Oct. 5.—Coach Chet Wynne's 1932 Auburn football squad has boys from four states. The Tigers are from Alabama, Florida, Georgia and Tennessee. The Plainsmen's brilliant leader and halfback, Jammie Hitchcock, hails from Union Springs, Ala.

AUBURN POWERFUL.
AUBURN, Ala., Oct. 5.—Auburn has had great football machines in the past, but only four have ever defeated an opponent more than 77 to 0, the score Coach Chet Wynne's 1932 team defeated Erskine. The teams to surpass this record are the 1894, 1910, 1915 and 1916 eleven.

The 1894 team trounced Georgia Tech, 96 to 0; the 1910 team Howard, 78 to 0; the 1915 team Marion, 78 to 0, and the 1916 outfit beat Mercer, 92 to 0. However, the 77-0 count was equaled by Auburn's 1929 team, as this was the score this team defeated Washington and Lee.

DISEASE IS RAMPANT IN WAKE OF HURRICANE
SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Oct. 5.—(P)—Disease, stalking in the path of the recent hurricane, has raised a new menace to the people of Puerto Rico. Doctors reported malaria and influenza were spreading in the towns of Luquillo, Fajardo and other sections, and that water contamination caused a fear of typhoid. Anti-typhoid inoculations already have begun and 50,000 additional doses of serum have been ordered from the mainland.

The housing problem also is presenting difficulties.

U. S. CONSUL DECLARED 'WHITE RUSSIAN' ALLY
MOSCOW, Oct. 5.—(P)—A charge that the American consulate at Harbin, Manchuria, was "actively working among the white Russians" was made Tuesday in a Tass (official Russian) news dispatch from Kharovsk, Siberia, dated October 3.

It was further alleged "American sources" in Harbin were spreading provocative rumors in connection with the activity of Chinese troops that the Manchurian state on the western line of the Chinese Eastern railway.

The dispatch added these rumors were aimed at straining relations between Japan and Russia.

2 HELD IN KILLING OF FARMER-PICKET IN POWER INQUIRY

Father and Son Arrested After Slaying on Minnesota Highway.

CANBY, Minn., Oct. 5.—(P)—A father and his son were arrested today in connection with the slaying of Nordahl Peterson, 25, farmer-picket, shot to death a mile west of here last night. They were placed in jail at Granite Falls.

They are Ole Anderson, 47, and Leonard Anderson, 19, whose farm house is a short distance from where the shooting occurred.

Peterson's death was the first fatality of the Minnesota farmers' holiday movement, which has brought picketing of many highways in recent weeks by farmers hoping to raise prices by preventing marketing of non-perishable products.

Deputy Sheriff O. C. Snortum, said the son admitted driving past the roadside picket tent where Peterson was standing when a shotgun charge killed him instantly.

Deputy Sheriff Snortum said the Andersons denied knowledge of the killing. The father, he asserted, had complained that picketing was carried out "right in front of my house."

PICKETING IS LAUNCHED AROUND SIOUX FALLS
SIOUX FALLS, S. D., Oct. 5.—(P)—Acting without warning, 100 Minnesota county farmers today established picket squads on three routes to Sioux Falls to prevent entrance of live stock and grains to the city.

At noon they had halted a 600-foot line of trucks.

Some pickets, who said they were members of the Farm Holiday Association, said the other 13 roads entering the city would be guarded tomorrow.

Curtis Gains Point In Plea for Liberty
TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 5.—(P)—John Hughes Curtis, Norfolk boat builder, who was accused and convicted of misleading searches for the Lindbergh baby kidnappers, defeated a move today to send him to jail immediately.

The supreme court, after hearing the state press for a dismissal of Curtis' appeal for alleged lack of prosecution, and defense attorneys argue for continuance until January, offered a compromise.

Chief Justice Gummere announced the court would hear the appeal this term if the case is submitted on briefs within 40 days. Otherwise, he said, a postponement would be granted until January.

Curtis, under sentence for a year's imprisonment and a fine of $1,000, is free under $10,000 bail, which will be continued pending disposition of the appeal. He was not in court.

"W" PREDOMINATES.
AUBURN, Ala., Oct. 5.—"W" is a familiar letter to the members of Auburn's 1932 football squad. Sixteen of the 47 members of the squad have first or middle names starting with "W" and four others have last names.

Griffith May Succeed Barney

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—(AP)—A hint that Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington American league baseball club, may himself succeed Walter Johnson as manager next year was given tonight by Griffith.

Asked if he was considering returning as manager, Griffith said it was possible. He added, however:

"Only if I am unable to find the man I want I take over the management myself."

Griffith came to Washington as manager in 1912. His comment added fuel to the speculative fires over who would succeed Johnson, who managed the team for the last four seasons. Griffith announced last night Johnson would not be the 1933 manager.

Some talked of Joe Judge, veteran first baseman, while others thought it possible that Sam Rice, long a Senator fielder, might be the pilot.

LINEERS IMPROVE FOR V.P.I. GAME

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Oct. 5.—

Despite its 7-to-6 defeat at the hands of Virginia at Charlottesville the past week-end, the University of Maryland football team is much encouraged for its home-coming game with Virginia Poly at College Park, Saturday.

Although in some sections of the football map the defeat of Maryland through the failure to kick the goal after its touchdown, was regarded as one of the upsets of the day, to those familiar with conditions the situation was just the opposite. Virginia, with a veteran lineup, was the favorite as Maryland went into the contest with only three 1931 regulars available, and five of the Old Liners who started the game were sophomores.

It doubtless was the inexperience of its players that cost Maryland a victory as the Old Liners gained 210 yards against 124 for the Cavaliers and might easily have won by two touchdowns had not there been several costly mistakes.

The play of the Maryland line, in which four sophomores beset the game, was pleasing to Coach Curley Byrd, who hopes to have his team further advanced by the time the Gobblers are met Saturday.

Virginia Poly's surprising 7-to-6 victory over Georgia in Athens last Saturday, is an indication of what Maryland will be up against this weekend.

JOE JUDGE, RICE AND JOE CRONIN SEEN AS PILOTS

Rumors Rife Regarding Successor to Johnson at Washington.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—(AP)—Three members of the Washington ball team were mentioned today in fan's gossip over the successor to Walter Johnson as manager.

A number of those trying to read the mind of Clark Griffith, owner of the Senators, seemed to feel that Joe Judge, veteran first baseman, was the favorite for the position. Others talked of another veteran, Sam Rice, outfielder.

Still others felt Griffith might follow the precedent established in naming young "Bucky" Harris some years ago and offer Joe Cronin, star shortstop, the post. The name of Harris, now manager of the Detroit Tigers, was also heard occasionally in the outpour of speculation.

Griffith, who announced last night that Johnson would not lead the team again next season, gave neither confirmation nor denial to the gossip. He said he was still uncertain as to his choice.

Johnson, manager since 1929 and one of the game's best pitchers before he quit the ranks, had not returned to his home town. Members of his family said he was still in Baltimore. There were rumors he might lead the Baltimore Orioles of the International league next year. This was denied, however, by club officials.

Both Judge and Rice have been with the team since 1915. The former, until this year the club's regular first baseman, has been frequently spoken of as managerial timber. Cronin only 26 but he led the Senators on the field this year and his admirers say his aggressiveness turned many a close game.

Loretta Turnbull To Wed Wednesday

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 5.—(AP)—Loretta Turnbull, 20, of Monrovia, Cal., who has won numerous speed boat, and Richard Blythe, of New York, filed application today for a marriage license. The two said they planned to wed next Wednesday at Monrovia, a suburb. Miss Turnbull is the daughter of Rupert Turnbull, federal referee in bankruptcy.

Bowling

F. Perryman won high point prize at the local bowling alley last night when he posted a score of 600 on the ten-pin alleys to carry off the weekly honors in three games.

Three new leagues will swing into action tonight with 18 teams bowling. The Power Club league, Bell System league and the Amateur league are the new ones going into action tonight. The Power league is composed of the following teams: Sales, Mechanic, Consumers, Decatur Street office, Operation and Transportation; the Bell league, A. T. T., Engineers, Accounting, General Plant, Division Plant and Disbursement Accounting; the Amateur league, Seaboard, Curtis Printing, General Electric, Fox Company, General Electric Supply and Railway Mail.

HASKELL LIGHT FOR IRISH TEAM

LAWRENCE, Kan., Oct. 5.—(AP)—Their "given" names betoken the old ferocity of the redskins but it's a flock of young high school Indians which will oppose Notre Dame at South Bend next Saturday.

Haskell football players tutored by Lone Star Dietz are the youngest and lightest ever developed at the government Indian school here.

The reason is that Haskell is scaling down its scholastic standing to the high school level. The football schedule for this year will go into eclipse, too, but the Notre Dame game was booked when Great Indian teams were accepting all challenges. Dietz's amazing multiple pass plays and unorthodox football.

Indian names with which Haskell players are dubbed by the publicity department can note the warlike tendencies of their predecessors—Knock Off Two, Whirlwind Soldier, Hits Enemy, Brave Heart, Charging Bull, Jumping Panther, Hungry Wolf, Tomahawks.

The statistical chart tells the story in a more accurate, if less picturesque way.

The oldest squad member is 21, the youngest are high school youths of 18. The line averages 178 pounds, the backfield, 163.

Old Lone Star hasn't quite given up hope although Haskell pariahs concede Notre Dame will beat them under wraps. Dietz learned a lot of tricks from Pop Warner at Carleton, too, but the Notre Dame Indian play, and invented many more himself.

The idea of the trick plays was to offset the absence of some star player. It was while Jim Thorpe was recovering from injuries that the dead Indian play was evolved. Now that Dietz has only a few stars left from his famous Indian teams, he has plenty of reason for using deceptive strategy.

A new rabbit ball lugger has come along to take the place of Louis (Lil' Rabbit) Weller, who captained the Redmen three years and then joined the coaching staff. Weller's successor is Robert (Swift Bird) Holmes, a 135-pound, 19-year-old Ottawa from Miami, Okla. Like Weller, he throws with either hand.

There is no lack of football knowledge in the All-Indian coaching staff—Dietz, a Sioux; Ed Ward, a Yakima; John Levi, an Arapahoe, who was author of one of the longest completed forward passes on record, and Weller, a Caddo.

The squad is made up of redmen from many parts of the country, from Crow Creek, Mont., to New York state, and among its members are braves from the almost extinct Nez Perce and Euclee tribes.

The Norris Grain Company said: "The president's speech was of no particular benefit to the grain market at present, whatever may develop later on in the way of cancellation of war debts to help export business."

On the other hand, George E. Saunders, of Abbott Hoppin & Company, said: "President Hoover proposed at Des Moines last night that any annual payment due us on the war debts be used for the specific purpose of securing an expansion of the foreign markets for our agricultural products, tantamount as I view it, to cancellation of war debts to the extent of purchasing. This proposal in my view is a bounty plan of the boldest nature, disposing of our agricultural surplus in the European markets to full face value for many years to come, as billion dollars of war debts is still unpaid. This plan, if adopted, should result in the complete resurrection of American agriculture."

Corn declined because of sympathy with wheat, most pit observers said.

VIOLETS PUZZLED.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—(UP)—New York University's football team concentrated yesterday on solving formations likely to be used Saturday by Rutgers. During scrimmage against the third team, the varsity ripped off several long runs effectively.

TIGERS WIN TWO.

AUBURN, Ala., Oct. 5.—The Tigers of Alabama Polytechnic Institute have won 155 gridiron contests, lost 98 and tied 18 since football was inaugurated at the Plains in 1892.

Coach Chet Wynne's 1932 team has annexed two victories in as many starts.

MUST WORK HARD.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 5.—(UP)—Jack Crickard, Harvard's ace halfback, must pass a psychology make-up examination October 13 if his presence on the Harvard team is to be assured. It became known yesterday. He will start against New Hampshire Saturday, however.

STOCKS AND GRAIN DECLINE SHARPLY

Farm Products Fail To Respond To Hoover Speech, Break Results.

BY OTTO E. STURM.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—(UP)—Stocks crashed 1 to 3 points in one of the worst breaks of the year today. Selling orders poured into the market at a furious pace and the turnover rose to more than 3,000,000 shares, compared with recent sessions of around a million shares.

Stocks were dumped on the market for what they would bring when a widespread break in the Chicago grain pits sent wheat down more than a cent a bushel, corn a cent and oats to the lowest levels since 1897.

This upset financial equilibrium all around. Bonds slumped 3 to 6 points. On the average, Cotton lost about a dollar a bale. Rubber, silk and other commodities reacted.

Recent "bulls" in the wheat pit were reported to have thrown their holdings overboard when the market failed to respond to President Hoover's 12-point program for financial relief.

As a consequence, early selling in the stock market was directly mainly against farm equipment and mail order stocks, but liquidation soon spread to all sections of the list.

Closing prices on Steel, American Can, Allied Chemical, Westinghouse Electric, Bethlehem Steel and American Telephone were from 3 to 6 points lower.

Grains were hard hit by the selling wave. Union Pacific closed at 67 1/8, off 7 3/8; Atchafalca at 46 3/4, off 7 1/8; New York Central 23 1/8, off 4 5/8; and Chesapeake & Ohio 21, off 2 1/2.

Having held to a narrow trading range for the last 10 days, the market was ripe for an outburst on either side. The downward plunge came in the face of such generally favorable business news as an increase in steel operations, lower rate of business failures and higher electricity production.

The pool in United Aircraft deserted the stock and it fell more than 5 points. Utilities and oils were not spared in the selling deluge and suffered wide recessions.

Railroad bonds were the weakest in that sector of the financial front, losing 4 to 8 points. Convertible bonds broke sharply with their relative stocks.

HEAVY SELLING SWEEPS GRAIN PRICES DOWNWARD

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—(AP)—A heavy barrage of selling orders rolled over the grain pits today and the prices of all cereals fell back with severe losses.

The blast of selling drove wheat back to price levels current early in August, corn to previous minimums of 1896, and oats to the lowest quotations of the season.

When trading stopped for the day, wheat was 2 1/2 to 2 3/8 cents below yesterday's finish, corn 1 1/8 to 1 3/8 down, oats 3 1/4 cent off, and provisions registered losses ranging from 1 to 3 cents.

Many traders were inclined to ascribe the reaction of prices to the view that President Hoover's Des Moines speech last night was not as bullish as had been expected, others took the opposite stand.

Bartlett Frazier & Co., said President Hoover's address had added nothing to the agricultural marketing situation.

The Norris Grain Company said: "The president's speech was of no particular benefit to the grain market at present, whatever may develop later on in the way of cancellation of war debts to help export business."

On the other hand, George E. Saunders, of Abbott Hoppin & Company, said: "President Hoover proposed at Des Moines last night that any annual payment due us on the war debts be used for the specific purpose of securing an expansion of the foreign markets for our agricultural products, tantamount as I view it, to cancellation of war debts to the extent of purchasing. This proposal in my view is a bounty plan of the boldest nature, disposing of our agricultural surplus in the European markets to full face value for many years to come, as billion dollars of war debts is still unpaid. This plan, if adopted, should result in the complete resurrection of American agriculture."

Corn declined because of sympathy with wheat, most pit observers said.

Tone of the Markets.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—(AP)—Stocks today ran into bluster weather that blew prices down 1 to 8 points in the liveliest trading of the past fortnight.

The market's sojourn in a leisurely trading range was interrupted by several decisive selling moves that have been since last month when the market was being, as Wall Street calls it, consolidated.

Stop-loss orders, it seemed, had been plentifully sprinkled through the list. Although supporting levels looked rather thin, it was noted that the closing average, 57.7, was 5.2 points net lower, was just above the September 10 day, a mark which held for several days prior to the most recent recovery.

Losses of 4 to 5 points in pivotal stalwarts as United States Steel, General Electric, Westinghouse, DuPont, Norfolk and Western Pacific, International Harvester.

Montgomery Ward, Consolidated Gas, Union Carbide, Chesapeake and Ohio and Pennsylvania Bell 2 to 3.

The market's trend was contrary to midweek trade statistics. Steel operations have maintained an upward direction and electric power production was moderately higher last week.

Cardington reports indicated that some further improvement in freight movements had taken place last week, which might mean the percentage decline from 1931 the upward trend in course, although a year ago.

Many in Wall Street, however, feel that a rapid, spectacular recovery is probably too much to expect.

Steel manufacturers are still forced to struggle along without the large companies which would stimulate production. Iron Age was moderately optimistic in its estimate of fourth quarter prospects.

Business is approaching the usual period of the peak of seasonal recovery, and numerous Wall Street observers were taking that point into consideration.

Huddled at the far side of the hut, Olga awaited the man who had been waiting for her. She could not sleep, so filled with wild schemes of escape. Half an hour later her guard entered and tried to talk to her. Shrinking, she drew away.

"Do not touch me!" she cried. "I will tell Uanga if you do not leave me alone, and you know what he will do to you!" The fellow only laughed drunkenly and dragged her toward him. Fighting, she called in terror for Uanga.

At the same instant the entrance to the hut was darkened by a man's figure. "What is the matter?" shouted the newcomer. Olga recognized the deep voice as that of the black sergeant, Uanga. He had come; but would she be any better off?

When Uanga found what had happened he kicked the warrior out of the hut. After the fellow disappeared the sergeant approached the terrified girl. Twice she avoided him but in his third rush he seized her in his long, ape-like arms.
